"Thou unrelenting Fate! Strong are the barriers round thy dark domain. And fatters sure and fast Hold all that enter thy unbreathing reign."

We can understand why a dry American liner beats a wet British one to Havana, but with Grover Whalen on the job what's the idea of the President Roosevelt breaking the record back to New York?

The only street car merger that seems to be making any progress is the one between the flu germ and the over-crowded strap-hanger.

National Snacks Conference refuses to recommend the use of more dry store whisky in combating the flu, as the last time a bottle of it went up against a germ it was so weak it only lasted one round.

Senate committee boosts the appropriation for the war against John Barleycorn by another $25,000,000, but who have those Senators been eating lately?

King Amanullah yields to the demands of his subjects that all efforts to westernize and modernize Afghanistan shall cease at once, so it looks as though that benighted and backward country would have to worry along without bandits, bootleggers, pineapple throwers, racketeers, and women showing their "knees" to the general public.

The chain-store magnet draws Sears, Roebuck & Co. to Washington. You can't sell goods in these modern days without advertising them in the local newspaper directly to the cash customer.

Col. Charles Lindbergh goes extensively into the Latin American good-will business.

Gen. Bramwell Booth couldn't be any harder to oust if he were a member of the old Cabinet.

Senator Brookhart's assertion that the ratification of the Kellogg treaty will mean the recognition of Soviet Russia would line up the Pillsbury for the post if they weren't already for it.

The Bureau of Efficiency discovers that the Federal Government isn't paying its just share of the cost of maintaining the National Capital, without knowing it. Accidents will happen.

The House discovers its copy of the Constitution of the United States after mislaying it for ten years, but what ground is there for the assumption that the Senate will prove an inspiration and a guide for the bomber and racketeer by defeating the reappropriation bill?

Those smuggled documents turn out to be almost as fraudulent as some of the smuggled liquor.

To make effective propaganda a smuggled document should be cut not more than once.

Seven of Uncle Sam's soldiers of the sky lose their lives as their plane crashes. There is still more than one question mark in aviation.

Says Mr. Hill to Mr. Hilles, "My plan the different jobs to fill."

Says Mr. Hilles to Mr. Hill, "The heck you say—like heck you will!"

If the ninth anniversary of prohibition calls for an additional appropriation of $25,000,000 per annum, the tenth will probably require $100,000,000 more.

Prof. Einstein is out with a new theory, but the pacifist still clings to the old idea that there won't be any more war.

There was a little girl, who had a little curl, Right in the middle of her forehead; When she used care she had very pretty hair—

When she shaved her neck she was horrid.

Curls are coming back in Paris, and probably in a year or two over here it won't be so hard looking at the girl in the seat in front of you.

It is rumored that a National Flue Convention will be called at once by some of the most prominent germs of the country to counteract the activities of the National Snacks Conference.

"Miss Four-Hundred," winner of the Palm Beach beauty contest, is too exclusive to have her name appear in the public prints, but eventually we shall probably have a photograph of her in a kiosk in the rotunda section, marked down to 3.99.

We trust that Alfonso doesn't let Mussolini learn that Columbus was born in Spain instead of Genoa, as we do not care to see the Kellogg treaty subjected to a strain so soon.

CHEST BUDGETS REQUIRE DRIVE FOR $1,343,348

55 Agencies Will Share Huge Fund to Meet 1929 Expenses.

TRUSTEES TO BORROW FOR JANUARY AMOUNTS

Additional Requests Will Be Considered After Campaign Is Ended.

Washington will be asked to contribute $1,343,348.93 to the Community Chest for 1929.

This figure was announced by Charles J. Bell, chairman of the chest budget committee, at a meeting of the trustees in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building yesterday afternoon and was unanimously approved by them.

Mr. Bell explained that the recommendations made are tentative because of the fact that so many of the member agencies applied for membership at so late a date, while others were late in getting their budgets into the hands of the committee. For this reason, Mr. Bell said, the recommendations are subject to discussion between the agencies and the budget committee. If any of the agencies feel that the appropriations are not entirely satisfactory, a contingent fund, he explained, had been provided of sufficient size to take care of any adjustments which may be necessary or for any emergencies that may develop during the year.

Changes to Await Campaign. While the budget committee will be glad to discuss any questions of change with the member agencies before the campaign, it suggests that these discussions be postponed until after the campaign if possible in order that definite action can be taken with full knowledge of the funds which will be available and of the appropriations which will be justified.

Mr. Bell explained further that some of the appropriations are below the normal amount required by some agencies for the reason that these particular agencies have cash on hand from last year.

He also warned the agencies that even where the appropriations are greater than the amount expended last year, that such agencies make no commitments for expenditures beyond 1928 until after the campaign is ended. The speaker called particular attention to the campaign and administration fund, explaining that it had been set at only 6 per cent of the whole. He declared that this would effect a saving of thousands of dollars, the usual cost for raising this amount by the 57 agencies involved totaling around 15 per cent or more.

Chest to Borrow $75,000. Frederic A. Delano, president of the Community Chest, asked that the trustees authorize the officers of the chest to borrow not to exceed $75,000 to care for current expenses and January payments to agencies. This permission was granted unanimously.

Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, opened the meeting with a discussion of the progress made thus far on the campaign, declaring that never had he witnessed such great results by Community Chest committees in the same space of time. He told of several plans made for the chest, announced the opening of headquarters and invited all present to visit them at any time. Mr. Street explained that

Stewart Lawyers and Jury Deny "Technical" Verdict

Statement Issued Here Answers Letter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to Stockholders of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana as to Perjury Case Acquittal.

Denying charges that Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was acquitted on a "technicality" of charges of perjury before a Senate investigating committee, Frank J. Hogan and Adkins & Nesbitt, Washington attorneys, who represented him in the trial issued a statement last night in which they incorporated a document signed by the twelve jurors which contained a similar denial.

The statement was issued as an answer to a letter said to have been sent to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana seeking proxies for that company's annual meeting, and which, according to newspaper reports, contained references to the effect that Stewart's acquittal was based on a "technicality."

The document signed by the jurors and incorporated as a part of the attorneys' statement follows: "Washington, D. C., December 8, 1928. "The undersigned were members of the jury in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in the case of United States vs. Robert W. Stewart, from November 13 to 20, 1928.

Mash Notes Fill Hall; Concert Riot Follows

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Berlin, Jan. 11.—Berlin's most famous concert hall, the Philharmonie, tonight was the scene of an amazing riot when one man got up from his front row seat during the concert and shouted, "I have been the victim of a publicity gag. I have come here in reply to a letter I got after I replied to a newspaper advertisement stating that a beautiful young blonde with an independent income desired to make the acquaintance of a gentleman, with a view to marriage. The letter invited me to be present here in the first few rows at this concert, when I would spot the lady by the fact that she was holding a bouquet of white roses. No lady is holding white roses here."

With these words about 200 men, all seated in the front rows, arose, said they had been similarly deceived and demanded their money back. The rest of the audience, after loud outbursts of laughter, protested violently, and the two factions soon came to blows. They were only separated by police, who made a baton charge.

U. S. AID TO DISTRICT HELD TO BE "PALTRY"

Clapper Cites Figures of Bureau of Efficiency to Show Neglect of Capital.

SIMMONS OPPOSES VIEW

The fiscal relations report of the Bureau of Efficiency bears out the contention that the Federal Government is not paying its fair share toward the expenses of the "real government, in the opinion of Senator Clapper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee.

The report, which was delivered to Congress yesterday, shows that if the Federal Government were obliged to pay taxes on its property here its tax bill would be $7,440,939.

At present the Federal Government is contributing as its share of the cost of the local government an annual lump sum of $5,000,000. Subtracting from this what the Federal Government would have to pay in taxes if its property were taxable, one gets the sum of $1,350,061. This is all the Federal Government is paying beyond what it would have to pay in taxes.

"It would seem to me," said Senator Clapper last night, "that this is a paltry sum for the National Government to pay toward the upkeep of its own Federal City."

Senator Clapper pointed out that because this is the National Capital, it is necessary to maintain a highly expensive fire department and police department to protect Federal property, that school buildings and other municipal buildings must necessarily be beautiful in order to harmonize with the Federal buildings, that streets must be wide and when possible, shaded, and that industrial growth is discouraged. In short, he said, the local government, always conscious that this is a Federal city, spends considerably more on its departments and projects than it otherwise might be obliged to spend.

The Kansas senator does not think that $1,500,001 makes for these extraordinary expenditures by the District government.

He has long been opposed to the present lump sum system, and has advocated a system whereby the Federal Government would pay a proportional share of the cost of government here. At one time, the Federal and District Governments split the bill on a 50-50 basis, and later on a 60-40 basis, the Federal Government paying the 40 per cent and the District 60.

The report of the Bureau of Efficiency, however, contained comfort for

TRACTION LINES ACCEPT CAPPER MERGER TERMS

Senator Asserts Heads of Companies Agree to Resolution.

CONTINUES PRESENT FARE FOR TWO YEARS

Free Transfers Granted and $50,000,000 Valuation Clause Abandoned.

The heads of the local traction companies have accepted the principal terms for a merger laid down by a subcommittee of the Senate District committee. It was announced last night by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, the chairman.

Capper gave out the information after he had talked to Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, the New York utilities expert, who earlier had been in conference with the traction men.

The terms accepted by the traction men are, briefly, that the merger be entered into without the proposed $50,000,000 valuation for the consolidated company; that the present rate of fare be continued for two years, and that free transfers be granted from what is now the Capital Traction Co. to what is now the Washington Railway & Electric Co., and vice versa.

Acceptance of these terms, however, by no means ends the merger negotiations.

Other Questions Pending.

There are a number of questions in connection with the pact that must yet be worked out. It is understood that Maltbie knows the attitude of the companies on these, and is ready to tell the subcommittee just how they stand.

Senator Capper said last night that he would call a meeting of the merger subcommittee this morning, and have the members hear Dr. Maltbie tell about the conference last night.

It is understood that the traction men were willing at the outset to agree to the proposal to drop the $50,000,000 valuation, but balked at the proposal to continue the present rate of fare for two years. They were willing to continue it for one year, but thought that two years was asking too much. If the end, however, they apparently capitulated.

Subcommittee Meets Today.

When the subcommittee meets this morning it will have before it a new merger resolution embodying a new set of provisions dealing with the important questions involved in the merger.

The new resolution will contain no mention of a $50,000,000 valuation, and will specify that the present fare shall continue for two years instead of one, as is provided by the resolution now pending before the House. What its other provisions are remains to be seen.

When the Senate reports the new resolution—if, indeed, it does report it—Chairman Zimman, of the House District committee, will recall the resolution which his committee reported to the House, and will ask that the Senate resolution be reported in its place.

Bones of Earliest Modern Man Seen

East African Expedition Uses Dental Instruments in Picking Earth.

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, South Africa, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The claim to the discovery of a skeleton of the earliest known modern type of man has been made by the leader of the East African archaeological expedition which is backed by Sir Arthur Keith.

The discovery was made near Lake Kakaru, in a small valley where the process of excavation was so delicate that the earth surrounding the skeleton had to be moved by using dental instruments as picks and teaspoons as shovels.

Peking, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Sir Sven Anders Hedin, Swedish explorer, on his arrival here today from central Asia announced that he had discovered a new species of dinosaur. He had spent several months in scientific investigations and recently established five meteorological stations in central Asia.

U. S. Ship Beats Cunard Liner Back From Cuba

New York, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The unofficial contest between the United States liner President Roosevelt and the Cunard Coronia went merrily on today when the American ship pulled into quarantine five hours ahead of her British rival on the run from Havana.

The Roosevelt, which left Havana three hours before the Coronia, after beating her down, arrived at 4 a. m. and the Coronia at 9 a. m. The latter brought 102 passengers and the Roosevelt 84. Both were reported heavily booked for the return voyage tomorrow. The Roosevelt was loaded to the Ward Line to compete with the Coronia when the Cunard Line assigned that ship to the New York-Havana peak season service.

SEVEN ARMY FLIERS KILLED WHEN BOLLING FIELD PLANE CRASHES ON TEST FLIGHT

These eight men were aboard the tri-motored Army transport plane which crashed yesterday at Bolling Field, taking a toll of seven fliers and seriously injuring the lone survivor. They are—(1) Second Lieut. Henry R. Angell, (2) Staff Sgt. Henry Cronan, (3) Master Sgt. Joseph McCarthy, (4) Private Clarence E. Birch, (5) Staff Sgt. Rudolph J. LeHatta, (6) Private Michael D. Kelly, (7) Private Samuel P. Jones and (8) Sgt. Patrick Conroy, the lone survivor.

REDISTRICTING BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Lower Chamber Votes for Measure That Keeps Seats at Present 435 Figure.

BASED ON 1930 CENSUS

(Associated Press.)

After ignoring for almost ten years the constitutional mandate to reapportion its membership, the House last night passed the Fenn bill to prescribe a method by which its seats shall be allotted among the States after the next census in 1930 if Congress should fail to act at that time.

The measure was passed after a motion to send it back to committee had failed by a vote of 228 to 134. This ended a struggle which has been somewhat similar bills better four times in the last six years. On one other occasion the House passed a reapportionment measure, but it failed to gain the approval of the Senate.

A storm of debate that held the House for two days preceded its passage. With some exceptions most of the members taking part in the fight disregarded party lines and favored or opposed the measure largely according to whether their States would gain or lose representation. The proposal provides that on the first day of the second session of the Seventy-first Congress the Secretary of Commerce shall transmit to it a statement showing the population of each State and the number of representatives each State would be entitled to under an allotment of the present 435 seats. It also prescribes a mathematical method for arriving at the distribution of seats.

Under the second section of the bill it is provided that, if Congress fails

Boy, 14, Given Life for Part In Hex Killing

York, Pa., Jan. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—At the price of life imprisonment for 14-year-old John Curry, the Commonwealth proved again today that there is no witchcraft in York County's witchcraft trials.

Bobbey, not witchcraft, was the motive for the killing of the "Witch." Nelson Rehmyer, on November 27, District Attorney Ames Herrmann told the twelve stern men in the jury box, almost all of them as old as the 10-year-old former porwom John Blymyer and his two boy aids had killed.

The schoolboy had told the court that he had gone along with his older friend, Blymyer, to the "Witch's" house because he "wanted to see some of this witchcraft performed."

In summing up, the prosecutor pointed to the bright-faced, good-looking boy in the dock.

"Look at him," he cried. "He's as bright and alert as any of us."

The truth was John Curry was a good deal brighter and more alert than some of his elders. He listened soberly, trying to hide the fact that he was scared.

"You must remember that even though 'h' is a boy he is as accountable under the law as you or I," said the mellow-voiced bald-domed prosecutor. Representing the Commonwealth. "If Curry and his two companions wanted to get a lock of the old farmer's hair to break a spell, why didn't they get more money for us?"

A baby began squalling in the dismal courtroom. Huddled people in the packed room sniffed and coughed.

"He's not a mental or physical weakling," went on the Commonwealth. The witch-finding Blymyer was a mental

AIR TRAGEDY HITS 3 CAPITAL FAMILIES

Wives Here Mourn Victims of Army Plane's Crash in Pennsylvania.

SIX CHILDREN FATHERLESS

Three Army women were told of death's summons yesterday. Three of the seven air men who were killed in the wreck of the Army transport plane at Royalton, Pa., lived in Washington or the environs. Each man is survived by a wife and in two families there are six children.

The residence of Staff Sgt. Henry Cronan at 211 Cockrell avenue, Takoma Park, might have been taken from any one of the "reservations" the sergeant had served on in his 21 years' service. Fattered after the typical noncommissioned officers' barracks, small, compact, easy of entrance and exit, it is the home now of Mrs. Cronan and the five Cronan children.

"He was a good husband and father," Mrs. Cronan referred to him. While 11-year-old Mary cautioned her not to cry, "You can see it's a long way from here to Bolling Field. Well, my husband went to his work and came home every day.

"He had to get in a certain amount of flying time and if he hadn't been in that ship he would have got less pay. That is what breaks my heart, thinking he made the flight to get more money for us."

"Now, mother," little Mary interrupted, "you mustn't do like that. You mustn't cry."

Mrs. Cronan did not cry. "That's why all the men were in that plane," she said. "Ma, Davidson, he's the commandant at Bolling Field, came by to see me this afternoon and he said he lost the best men he had."

Ma, Davidson, accompanied by Mrs. Davidson, called at the home of each of his men, and offered the condolences an Army man has for an Army woman in distress.

Sgt. Cronan had done his turn in Cuba and had carried through the World War. Four years ago he transferred to the air service, attracted by a liking for machinery and the prospect of better pay.

Four children live in their home, Reginald, 19; Dorothy, 13; Mary, 11; Henry, 8. Another daughter, Mrs. Delores Huddleston, lives at 225 Massachusetts avenue northeast.

Mrs. Cronan did not know Sgt. LeHatta or Sgt. McCarthy, her husband's companions on their last flight.

Giant Transport Airship Nose-Dives to Earth in Pennsylvania.

DYING PILOT BEGS MEN TO SHOOT HIM

Three Washingtonians in Ill-Fated Craft Meet Death in Fall.

TANGLED WRECKAGE IMPRISONS VICTIMS

Single Survivor, Seriously Hurt, Is Looked To for Data as to Cause.

En route to Bolling Field, after a test flight to the Army air depot at Middletown, Pa., a giant tri-motored Army transport plane, nose-dived to earth yesterday at Royalton, a suburb of Middletown, snuffing out the lives of seven fliers and injuring another so badly that he may die. All the fliers were stationed at Bolling Field and three of the dead lived in Washington or suburbs.

Five enlisted men were killed outright. Second Lieut. Henry R. Angell, of Birmingham, and another died later, while the sole survivor suffered a fractured skull and other injuries which may prove fatal.

Lieut. Angell, the pilot, was entangled in matted mass of wire and crashed superstitious, and was rescued only after much of the wreckage had been cut away. He was so badly crushed and mangled that while en route to the hospital at Harrisburg, Pa., he pleaded:

"Shoot me, men, for God's sake!"

He died an hour later.

Official Army Death List.

An official list of the dead was given out by Army officials today:

Second Lieut. Henry R. Angell, Birmingham, Ala.

Staff Sgt. Rudolph J. LeHatta, 1888 Newton street northwest.

Staff Sgt. Henry Cronan, 211 Cockrell avenue, Takoma.

Master Sgt. Joseph D. McCarthy, 1443 U street northwest.

Private Michael D. Kelly, Minnerville, Pa.

Private Samuel P. Jones, Beltsville, Tenn.

Private Clarence E. Birch, Chicago, Ill.

The injured man, the sole survivor of the crash, is Sgt. Patrick Conroy, Somerville, Mass.

Sister Ship of Question Mark.

The plane, a sister ship of the famous Question Mark, which this week made a new aviation endurance record by remaining in the air over 150 hours, is being flown by test pilot Major Harold G. Gatty, Bolling Field yesterday morning and had just left the field of the Army air depot at Middletown on the homeward journey when it nose-dived and crashed.

Lieut. Angell, Sgt. Conroy and Private Kelly were alive when removed from the wreckage. Angell and Kelly died shortly after reaching a Harrisburg hospital.

Word of the crash was received at Bolling Field shortly afterward, and the War Department immediately ordered an official investigation. It developed last night that the investigation will be twofold, Bolling Field officials planning an inquiry in addition to the departmental one which will be convened at Middletown today.

Cause of Crash Unknown.

While the investigation will be primarily to determine the cause of the accident, War Department officials last night were in doubt as to whether the ever would be established. They stated that reports from Middletown indicated that the plane was so badly smashed that faulty construction or other flaws could not be discovered.

With this in mind officials based their hope of learning the cause of the tragedy on the ultimate recovery of the plane.

CONFERENCE ADOPTS PLAN TO FIGHT FLU

Larger Appropriations for General Health Defense—
First Request.

SURVEY BEGINS IN WEST

(Associated Press.)
The two-day influenza conference called by the Public Health Service adjourned yesterday after approving a program for fighting the disease. The initial step of this program will be taken next week with the start by the health service of a Nation-wide study of the disease.

Another part of the combative program calls for a move by those attending the session to attempt to enlist Nation-wide support for larger appropriations by Congress for general health defenses.

Delegates to the conference included physicians, scientists, and State and city public health officers. They listed among accomplishments of the meeting the formulation of detailed instructions to individuals and communities on what to do to prevent contracting influenza; what to do to prevent secondary infection in case the disease was contracted; and a program of cooperation on epidemiological investigation with facilities now available.

Whisky Urged as Treatment.
One of the delegates, Dr. Frank G. Atwood, of New Haven, Conn., said he was a "practical teetotaler," implored the conference to go on record in favor of more extensive use of medicinal liquor in treating influenza. He was unsuccessful in an attempt to introduce a resolution looking to revision of medicinal whisky regulations to permit physicians to supply all the whisky they considered necessary for their influenza patients.

Atwood insisted that the conference correspondence with Surgeon General Cummings through Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, had led him to believe that this subject was available.

After the conference adjourned, Dr. W. H. Frost, of Washington; Dr. M. V. Volz, of Cincinnati; and Dr. A. M. Simmons, of Washington, D. C., public health epidemic specialists, conferred over putting into effect the plan to canvas representative sections of the country to gain first-hand information on just what the manifestations of the present epidemic have been.

Several city authorities volunteered to carry on similar surveys in their own territories, and turn over data obtained. Federal representatives will be announced, will supervise operations in at least eight or ten cities. They will begin probably in West Coast cities, as it is their plan to enter territories after the epidemic has completed its course there.

Studies also will be made in representative rural sections, with the assistance of county health authorities and a staff of civilian employees.

Research Work is Planned.
Meanwhile, laboratory research will go forward under the direction of Dr. Frost and Dr. G. W. McCoy, director of the hygienic laboratory.

It also was recommended that the Public Health Service continue and extend investigations with available facilities; that State and local military authorities make special efforts to report influenza, adenitis, and other diseases; that the service continue to report general conditions peculiar to their respective localities, and that all States make influenza reports in order that a complete report may be obtained.

The conference adopted a resolution expressing regret over the absence of Surgeon General Cummings from the Health Service, who called the gathering. It was announced that Dr. Cummings was "quite sick," and was still in the hospital. He was expected to return to his office in a few days.

One of the topics discussed yesterday was what was described as inadequacy of reports obtainable on influenza. The State health officer of Pennsylvania said that in his territory, with a population of approximately 10,000,000, it was estimated that there were 1,500,000 cases, including both acute forms and mild respiratory disturbances. Authorities here have had no reports on that State.

Budget Meeting Called By President Coolidge
(Associated Press.)
President Coolidge yesterday announced that the semiannual meeting of the business organization of the Government will be held on Monday, January 28, in Memorial Continental Hall.

Greene Suffers
Collapse in Senate
Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont, whose health has been impaired ever since he was the victim of a bullet fired by a stray bullet fired by a prohibition agent at a bootlegger, suffered a slight stroke and was unable to attend the Senate yesterday afternoon while galleries were listening to the debate on the Kellogg treaty.

The senator was carried from his seat to the cloakroom by a group of his colleagues and first aid was rendered by Senator Copeland, who is a physician.

The senator's wife and Dr. George W. Culver, the house doctor, reached the senator's side within a few minutes. After regaining consciousness the senator returned to the floor for a short time before leaving for his home. He suffered a similar stroke about a year ago and speedily recovered.

Despite the injury to his health several years ago, the senator has been able to perform his duties.

British Legation Asks Informal Conferences for This Year.

(Associated Press.)
Chairman Britten, of the House naval committee, yesterday made public a letter from Commander Joseph Kenworthy, a member of the British parliament, proposing two informal meetings this year of Anglo-American legislators to discuss naval matters.

Kenworthy's communication was one of several exchanges of views between himself and Britten since the latter suggested to Premier Baldwin last December that naval limitation should be discussed at a meeting at Ottawa of members of the American and British national legislatures.

The letter of the parliament member yesterday suggested that the American congressional delegation should meet with a parliament group in London in the early spring, with a return visit to Washington in October next.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON HONORED

PRESIDENT FAVORS DAWES' DEBT PLANS

Chief Problem of Experts Is Period Over Which Germany Must Pay.

COOLIDGE HEARS YOUNG

(Associated Press.)
The Dawes reparations plan, in the opinion of President Coolidge, has proved so successful in operation that the essential question remaining to be settled at the coming reparations conference is the final amount which the German government will be called upon to pay.

This total, he believes, must be carefully worked out by the proposed commission of experts to meet the demands of equity and justice. If it is determined that the financial condition of Germany is such that it can pay a sum of $2,500,000,000 marks, it then must be decided over how long a period of time these yearly payments should be made.

The reparations problem occupied a prominent place yesterday at the White House. Early in the day, the semiweekly Cabinet meeting was kept waiting while Mr. Coolidge conferred at length with Secretary Kellogg and Owen D. Young, who served on the original Dawes reparations commission and has been prominently mentioned in the American press as a possible successor to the State Department.

Both declined to discuss their conversation with the president but Young said later to the press that a decision as to whether or not he would act in this capacity depended largely upon the physical condition and health of Young who at present is seriously ill.

Pottery Industry Urges High Tariff

Labor Chiefs Join Factory
Heads in Asking House
Body for Increases.

(Associated Press.)
Representatives of manufacturers, when they and labor joined hands yesterday in seeking before the ways and means committee increased tariffs for the protection of the American pottery industry.

The committee also devoted its attention to other items in the earthenware and glassware schedule, but at the close of the day and was postponed, remaining to be heard that it was found necessary to call a session for today, originally set aside as an off day. The important metals schedule will be tackled on Monday.

Pottery manufacturers, represented by W. E. Reed of East Liverpool, Ohio, presented a petition for an increase in rates on china and earthenware on the ground that American wages are so much higher than those in Europe and Japan that this country's products can not compete with the imported articles.

Day in Congress

SENATE.
Met at 11 and recessed to noon today. Senator Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, assailed the Kellogg treaty. Appropriations committee reported out the first deficiency bill after adding an additional $25,000,000 for prohibition enforcement, $2,400,000 for a new House office building and $15,000 for models for the new Supreme Court building.

Senator Greene (Republican), of Vermont, collapsed during the debate on the Kellogg treaty and was taken home. Passed the Penn reappropriation bill without a roll call, after voting down a motion to recommit, 228 to 116.

Mrs. William A. Gifford (Democrat), of Arkansas, was sworn in to succeed her late husband.

Joseph Goussin, of Jersey City, N. J., before the merchant marine committee, charged the Federal Radio Commission with having failed to make an equal distribution of radio facilities.

HOUSE.
Met at noon and adjourned at 4:30 to noon Monday.

Passed the Penn reappropriation bill without a roll call, after voting down a motion to recommit, 228 to 116.

Mrs. William A. Gifford (Democrat), of Arkansas, was sworn in to succeed her late husband.

UTILITY AID ADMITS FEDERATION GIFTS

Says $80,000 Was Donated to Women's Club Group in Four Years.

MRS. SHERMAN QUIZZED

(Associated Press.)
Testimony that the National Electric Light Association had contributed $80,000 between 1924 and 1928 to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, while Mrs. John D. Sherman, of Estes Park, Colo., was the federation's president, and that it also had paid $800 each for 24 magazine articles written by Mrs. Sherman, was presented yesterday to the Federal Trade Commission.

A voluntary witness before yesterday's session of the commission, public utility investigation, Mrs. Sherman, however, declared that she had been paid for the articles, dealing with the federation's "better equipped homes campaign," by the Lord, Thomas & Logan Agency, which had placed the articles with magazines for publication.

Under questioning by Robert E. Healy, chief counsel for the commission, Mrs. Sherman said that during her four years of federation presidency the $80,000 contribution from the light association, together with $5,000 from the American Gas Association, had been received by her organization.

Utility Aid Testifies.
George F. Oxley, director of public relations for the light association, who followed her on the stand, testified that the association had paid the Lord, Thomas & Logan Agency $800 for each article which, he said, were written while his organization was conducting a Nation-wide advertising campaign.

A total receipt of $1,125 from the magazine with which the articles were placed for publication, he added.

The association did not furnish any of the materials for the articles, declared, nor was any money paid to the magazines to have them printed. He sought only 12 or 13 of the 24 articles had been published.

Mrs. Sherman read a prepared statement calling attention to previous testimony by other witnesses before the commission, which she said "conveyed the impression that I have written articles for the National Electric Light Association." She declared she had "never written articles for the light association and never been on the association's pay roll."

She explained that after launching the better homes campaign in 1928, the federation decided to establish a "revolving fund" underwriting that it be used in publicity work for the campaign.

Negotiations Through Agency.
The subject was discussed in the fall of 1928 with the managing director of the National Electric Light Association, she said, whether the association would, in addition to its previously pledged contribution in connection with the nation's home equipment survey, provide the underwriting and revolving fund.

Arrangements were then made with the Lord, Thomas & Logan agency for the placement of one article a month for a year at $800. From that time on I sent my articles to the Logan agency and received payment directly from the agency."

Later a similar agreement was made for another twelve articles, she added, and all money received from magazines publishing the articles was to revert to the revolving fund.

Mrs. Sherman declared she had no official of the light association had dictated the subjects of the articles, none of which "had any bearing upon water power control or water subsidies. They were similar to articles she wrote for magazines during her first two years as president and before her arrangement with the Logan agency was made, she added.

Cutter Hurries to Aid Of Tanker Off Florida

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The Coast Guard cutter Yamacraw was ordered out of Savannah this afternoon to the aid of the American tanker Trinidad, grounded on Oglethorpe Shoals, on the Florida coast. The call for help by radio from the tanker at noon today stated she was hard aground and in need of immediate assistance.

Yamacraw put to sea immediately. Available maritime records report the vessel last at leaving Port Arthur for Jacksonville on January 2. She carries a crew of 24 men. Owners are the Gulf Refining Co., with headquarters in New York.

TERMINALS BUILT CONTRACT AWARDED

34 Stores Will Be Erected on Water Street Site; To Be Ready in June.

RAIL SIDINGS PROVIDED

Col. W. H. Brown, president of the Potomac Freight Terminals Co., yesterday announced that a contract had been awarded to the M. A. Long Co. of Baltimore and Washington, for the construction of 34 terminal stores fronting on Water street between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets southwest, with direct railroad truck connection, to accommodate commission merchants and wholesale distributors of perishable freight. Preliminary excavation work has been completed and construction work will start immediately. It is expected that the project will be completed by June at a cost of approximately $500,000.

The new Water street stores are part of a comprehensive plan for the general development of the Water Street Terminal Market area in southwest Washington. The complete plan is designed to provide for the most adequate facilities for the marketing agencies serving the city's population with perishable foodstuffs.

The site of these terminal stores is admirably located for the rapid handling and distribution of perishable freight, it being only 4 miles from Potomac yard, the convenient point for all freight moving from the South over the Southern trunk lines. To further accelerate this movement the Pennsylvania Railroad has agreed to build a 200-foot fan-shaped railroad bridge over Water street carrying truckage to serve the terminal stores and packing establishments, the most packers, wholesalers dealers in poultry and dairy products and other related industries which will be located in this terminal area.

These terminal stores will be two-story structures of modified colonial design to harmonize with the Municipal Fish Market Building on the south side of Water street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. The style of the buildings and the general plan for the terminal market district has been approved by the Fine Arts Commission.

Each store will be 80 feet long and 30 feet wide, the entire block of stores fronting on Water street for approximately 700 feet, with an average 30 feet depth extending to the rear of the block. Folding doors of improved design will separate the enclosed portion of each store from the outside. There will be a 10-foot sidewalk covered by a marquis in front of the stores, affording every convenience for buyers and protection from the elements in inclement weather. Some of the stores will have cellars for use of those dealers who require such facility for storing bananas and other perishable fruit. In the rear of these stores and extending for their full length next to the tracks will be a 16-foot sidewalk, over which will be a 10-foot bridge for the use of trucks from cars and motor trucks. Elevators will be provided to facilitate the transfer of produce within each store unit of the terminal.

These stores will be provided with necessary refrigeration by pipe lines from the central plant of the Municipal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corporation, occupying the entire block from Eleventh to Twelfth and E to F streets southwest. Contracts for this purpose have already been installed by authority of Congress.

The sales warehouse of the Cudahy Packing Co. at the corner of Twelfth and E streets southwest is already operating in this terminal area.

At the work progress on the terminal buildings the Pennsylvania Railroad will proceed with the construction of part track facilities for the terminal area to afford the direct rail service to the store platform and to be used for local train, freight and siding deliveries.

HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR REAPPORTMENT

to enact a law apportioning the representatives among the States, the seats shall be distributed in accordance with the allotment made by the Secretary of Commerce.

Although the measure was sharply contested, the opposition was beaten on every material point. The chief argument of advocates of the bill was that it would be difficult to secure the reapportionment legislation at the next Congress in the face of census figures which they estimated would take representation from seventeen States.

They submitted figures estimating that States would lose members as follows: Alabama, 1; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 2; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Mississippi, 2; Missouri, 3; Nebraska, 1; New York, 1; North Dakota, 1; Pennsylvania, 1; Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 1; and Virginia, 1.

It was estimated States would gain members as follows: Arizona, 1; California, 4; Connecticut, 1; Florida, 1; Michigan, 4; New Jersey, 2; North Carolina, 1; Ohio, 2; Oklahoma, 1; Texas, 2; and Wisconsin, 1.

Immediately after passage of the measure, the House adjourned over the week-end.

New 'Monkey Trial' Avoided; Case Laid to Firecrackers

Tennessee Witnesses Fail to Appear Against Teacher,
Who Is Acquitted by Board; Denies He Taught
Evolution; Law's Repeal to Be Demanded.

Jamestown, Tenn., Jan. 11 (A.P.)—Firecrackers playfully touched off at a Christmas celebration at the Clark Range County High School here started a train of events that threatened a second "Scopes" case, but this time against a violating Tennessee's anti-evolution statute. Prof. Elmore Gentry, won a sweeping victory this afternoon. Charges of teaching the theory of evolution in violation of the State law and of assault and battery filed against Gentry by the fathers of two boys he suspended as a result of the Christmas party were dismissed by the Federal County Board of Education, which accepted Gentry's defense that he had not taught evolution. He admitted, however, that he had permitted an "outlet of history" to be placed in the school library.

The prosecuting witnesses and their attorney did not appear, but the board decided to proceed with the case, and heard the testimony of Prof. Gentry. After giving the principal a clear bill, the board went into executive session while the 103 operators and a newspaper correspondent who had been at the proceedings, filed out of the court. The two accused were P. O. Dixon

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR NEW FREIGHT TERMINALS BUILDING

Architects' drawing of the proposed Potomac Freight Terminals Co. building at Twelfth and Water streets southwest, which will be erected at a cost of $500,000 and will be completed in June. There will be 34 stores fronting on Water street, each 80 feet long and 30 feet wide.

INAUGURAL LEADERS FACE COMPETITION

Unofficial Schemes to Make Money at Event Likely to Affect Financing.

HOTEL MAY SELL "PEEPS"

A situation confronting the inaugural committee, which apparently it can not control, concerns the probable activity of outside interests in converting features of the celebration into money making.

While the committee ponders ways and means of disposing of grandstand seats at a price to insure its financial protection, reports are current that New York men already have discussed leasing the old St. James Hotel on Pennsylvania avenue with a view to renting window space on March 4. The hotel building has many windows which at "a dollar a look" might yield a neat profit over the cost of the lease.

Unofficial Programs Said.

Another money making plan which proved successful in 1924 and 1925, despite the efforts of the inaugural committee, involved the sale of so-called programs, carrying advertising solicited from New York business firms. The advertisers were satisfied with a guarantee of wide distribution and whether the programs were sold or given away did not concern them. In some instances representatives of the inaugural committee approached firms for such programs, but they were refused. The program, only to learn that somebody had called on the same mission.

Although unpleasant to contemplate, the possibility of such a competition is legitimate. With no avenue of retribution, the committee is forced to argue that its program is as early as possible and as large as the article will permit. Presumably, arrangements to this end are being carried out, although Charles F. Payne, chairman of the program committee, has not commented on the possibilities.

Plan to Rent $5,000.

Planning to make available 50,000 seats along the Pennsylvania Avenue parade way, the grandstand committee hopes to command a good price for the privilege of viewing the parade in comfort, but not at a price that would be empty chairs.

The general committee is dependent on the income from this source, from the sale of programs and grant of concessions to defray the greater part of the cost of the civic celebration. Fenders of "foreign" matter will be kept from the parade way by virtue of the fact that the committee technically has supervision, but when it comes to bringing in the money it would seem to be a case of "first get first get."

Additional contributors to the inaugural fund were announced yesterday as follows:
Lester Freund, $25; Edward E. Clement, $50; Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, $250; L. A. Anderson, $500; C. F. E. Ogilby, $100; Charles Moore, $25; Carl Hammett, $25; Dr. Frank W. Ballou, $25; Walter A. Ballard, $100; Henry P. Blair, $250; G. N. Everett, $250; Capital Trust Co., $1,000; The Hecht Co., $1,000; Samuel J. Prescott, $1,000; Robert W. Harper, $200; Meyer's Shop, $100; Mrs. Sydney Croman, $100; O. H. P. Johnson, $100; C. K. Berryman, $50; H. Zirkin & Son, $50; A. Coulter Wells, $25; and Walter A. Brown, $100.

World Court Prophecy Dr. Wilkinson's Theme

Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of the Washington Missionary College, will lecture on "The World Court in Prophecy: Anomalous Sign," tomorrow night in the Arcadia Auditorium.

The Washington Missionary College choir will give a musical program arranged for the occasion. An expert from the Washington Sanitarium will precede Dr. Wilkinson's lecture with a meditation.

Christian Science Leader to Speak.

Mrs. Annie C. Bill, leader of the Christian Science Society, will speak tomorrow morning on "Scientific World Transformation," at the services to be held in the assembly room of the Lafayette Hotel.

and B. J. Jones. Dixon said he did not speak the charges because he believed the board had no authority to punish Gentry for violation of the law.

Dixon said he had not decided whether to swear to a warrant against Gentry. Both Dixon and Jones said their sons, who had been expelled by Gentry, had been reinstated, but would not return.

"I don't want my boy to be taught evolution," Dixon declared, and Jones said he didn't like the way the school was being run.

One development that may result from the case is a bill to repeal the anti-evolution law. Representative George L. Woodson, Federal County, who came here from Nashville to "help in saving Jamestown from having a Dayton monkey trial," said he will introduce a repeal bill, but because "the monkey bill is permitting people to make money out of Tennessee."

Mrs. E. W. Murray was elected a full-time hospital visitor at the meeting Thursday of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches.

London Layman Will Preach At Congregational Church

John Duxbury to Fill Pulpit of First Congregational,
While Rev. J. N. Pierce Speaks at Rutgers; Rev.
R. W. Weaver at Fifth Baptist.

Prof. John Duxbury, of London, England, will be a guest speaker tomorrow morning at the First Congregational Church in the absence of the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, who has been invited to preach at Rutgers University.

Prof. Duxbury will give a dramatic presentation of the Book of Job. He was formerly head of the Department of dramatic expression of Manchester University and is visiting Washington in the course of a lecture tour throughout the United States. Dr. Pierce will return in time to deliver the evening sermon, the subject of which is to be "Found Better Than Money." He will illustrate the sermon with the movie "Doomsday," based on Warwick Deering's book.

The Rev. R. W. Weaver, editor and author, will preach tomorrow morning from the pulpit of the Fifth Baptist Church. Dr. Weaver was formerly a pastor in Baltimore and also is secretary of the Southern Baptist Education Board.

Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor of the church, will preach tomorrow night on "The Story of Daniel." He also will teach the Berea Bible class.

"Memphis Conference" Topic.

"The Memphis Conference" is to be the topic upon which the Rev. W. A. Lambeth, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church, will preach tomorrow morning. In the evening he will speak on "A Grip on God." "The Silent Sacrifice" and "Tokens" are the subjects that the Rev. Earle Wilfley, pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, has chosen for his sermons tomorrow. Miss Katherine Wilfley will conduct the children's 11 o'clock service in the annex.

The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo will preach tomorrow morning at the service of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church which is to be held in the Masonic Auditorium. His subject will be "The Unfinished Work."

To Resume Evening Series.

Tomorrow night Dr. Sizoo will resume his Sunday evening studies in religion, which he discontinued during the holiday season. "The Subject: The Three Gods" is the subject announced.

The Rev. George Schnabel will discuss the third and fourth commandments tomorrow night at the Albright Memorial Evangelical Church. He will answer the question: When does the church become profane? What is a fanatic? and Shall we cast Sunday upon the junk heap of a forgotten past? The sermon is to be illustrated by the play "The Sunday Morning" which will be based on St. Paul's statement to King Agrippa, "Wherefore, O King Agrippa, I was disobedient unto the heavenly vision."

The Rev. J. J. Rives, pastor of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, will answer the question "What Is a Christian?" tomorrow night. Tomorrow morning he will tell of "The First Place." Clifton A. Woodrum will be a guest speaker.

Continuing his series of sermons on the general topic of "Religion Looks at Modern Civilization," the Rev. Moses E. Lovell, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "Religion and the Laboratories."

Unitarian Church Subject.

"The Double Imperative" will be the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce's subject tomorrow morning at All Souls' Unitarian Church. A program of American music will be presented at the Quiet Period at 5 o'clock under direction of Louis Arava and Flora McGill Keefe. Mrs. Margaret Spalding Gerry will open a series of book chats at 5:30 o'clock.

The Rev. William A. Eisenberger has announced that he will take "Christ's Faith in His Teaching" for his sermon tomorrow at the Church of the Covenant. Dr. Howard A. Woodrum, of the Civil Service Commission, will conduct the all-comers class at 9:45 o'clock. William P. Shriver, of New York, will speak on "Principles and Practice of the Southwest" at the meeting Wednesday morning of the Society of the Covenant.

"Taking Time" and "Life in the Southern Mountains" will be the subjects upon which the Rev. William E. La Rue, pastor of the Takoma Park Baptist Church, will speak tomorrow. His evening sermon will be illustrated by stereopticon slides.

"The Whirlwind and the Voice." The Rev. Frederic W. Perkins is to preach tomorrow morning on "The Whirlwind and the Voice" at the service.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will preach at the people's evensong service in Bethlehem Chapel tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The service is to be broadcast over station WRC.

The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of the Washington Cathedral, will preach at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow morning in the chapel. The Cathedral choir will sing and the boys will sing at both the 11 o'clock and 4 o'clock services.

The laymen of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will hold special Sunday evening services throughout Epiphany season, beginning tomorrow night. The general theme of the series is to be "What Christianity Means to Me."

The Rev. Florian Vurpillot, pastor of the French Congregation, which meets at St. John's Church at Lafayette Square each Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, will preach tomorrow on "Le Fil de Dieu est Venu."

There will be three services at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church tomorrow. The first, at which holy communion is to be celebrated, will be held at 7:30 o'clock; the second at 11 o'clock, when the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, rector, will preach, and the musical service at 4:30 o'clock. Preparations are being made for the visitation of the Bishop of Washington in March.

The Rev. Clarence Prentice Parker will preach at the 11 o'clock service at St. John's Episcopal Church, Bethesda, Md.

Evensong in New Church.
A choral evensong and procession will be held on the night of January 24 in the church of the Parish of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest, under auspices of the Anglo-Catholic Club of the Diocese of Washington.

The Rev. George Pike Dudley, rector of St. Stephen's and president of the standing committee of the diocese, will lead the service, while the Rev. Granville Mercer Williams, member of the Society of Mission Priests of St. Paul's Church, Brooklyn, will preach. The Rev. Calvin E. Buck, president of the Anglo-Catholic Club, will pronounce the benediction.

George Wharton Pepper, former senator from Pennsylvania, and Dr. William C. Sturgis will speak at the third annual fellowship dinner to be given February 5 in honor of Bishop Freeman. It was announced at a recent meeting of the interparish committee on arrangements.

THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

The report of the Bureau of Efficiency on fiscal relations between the District government and the United States, prepared at the request of the House and Senate committee on appropriations, was made public yesterday. It is a very misleading document. It relates the history of fiscal relations from the time the District of Columbia was established until the present. It asserts that the share of the Government in the cost of operating the City of Washington in the year 1928, computed on the basis of a municipal taxpayer, would have been but $7,440,000. It shows that the per capita tax for all purposes in the District for 1928 was $32.30, as compared with an average of $62.83 for cities of comparable size.

It is not fair to Washington taxpayers to suggest that the Government should pay its share of the cost of running Washington on the municipal taxpayer basis, nor is it possible to compare any other city in the country with Washington in connection with its cost of operation. Washington, as the Capital, is put to unique expenses. The fact that it is the seat of government has made necessary an expensive scheme of development and operation that could not have been assumed by a mere municipality. The report does not take adequate cognizance of these facts.

The report contains the following paragraph:

The solution of the problem of fiscal relations may lie in determining the Federal Government's liability toward the cost of operation and maintenance of the City of Washington along two lines, namely, (1) its tax liability as a municipal taxpayer of Washington in connection with the ordinary costs of government to the municipality, and (2) its liability on account of the extraordinary expenditures occasioned by the fact that Washington is the National Capital. The liability of the Federal Government as a municipal taxpayer has been computed by the bureau for the fiscal year 1928 to be $7,440,000. No attempt was made to compute the liability of the Federal Government on account of the second item named above. The two principal items to be considered in this connection are (1) loss of tax revenue on account of excess ordinary real property exemptions, and (2) cost of excess park acquisition and maintenance.

There are other items that necessarily must be considered. Because of Government property that must be protected an extraordinarily large police and fire department must be maintained. Because of the volume of official and semi-official traffic, an extraordinary street development program must be kept constantly under way. Because Government departments do not pay water rent, the cost of maintaining the District water supply system is burdensome to the District. The cost of every department and every activity of municipal government is increased by the mere fact that Washington is the seat of the Government.

When the Bureau of Efficiency admits that it has made no attempt to compute the liability of the United States Government to this municipality by reason of Washington being the National Capital it is obvious that the report has no value. The liability of the United States in maintaining its seat of government is the crux of the whole problem of local taxation.

Congress is the only body that can assess the responsibility of the United States toward the seat of government. During the last few years Congress has failed and refused to hold the Government responsible for its proper share of the cost of the District government.

PEDESTRIANS IN TRAFFIC.

Traffic control in the District is made difficult because of the fact that the pedestrian has not been regulated. Under the regulations, pedestrians have the right of way at all crosswalks except those controlled by traffic officers or lights, where it is unlawful for them to cross through moving traffic, and where they must yield the right of way to vehicular traffic that is moving on the proper signal. Vehicles have the right of way between crosswalks and between intersections, except that at controlled intersections vehicles making turns must yield the right of way to pedestrians. The regulations are clear, but the Police Department makes no move to apprehend pedestrians who daily violate the regulations.

The clauses in the traffic regulations having to do with pedestrian control may be grouped under the head of jaywalking ordinances. Other cities have and enforce such regulations. Cincinnati, for example, where Col. C. O. Sherrill, former District Commissioner of Washington, became city manager and drafted a traffic code that has relieved considerably the deplorable traffic situation that obtained in that city of narrow streets, for many months has been arresting jaywalkers. The citizens of Cincinnati now complain vigorously against summary arrests, and an ordinance has been drafted for their relief. Complaint is not made against the jaywalking ordinance, however, and the new ordinance provides merely that jaywalkers may be cited to appear at the traffic bureau and pay their fines instead of being summarily arrested. Citizens of Cincinnati realize, it is said, the necessity of the jaywalking ordinances, and do not desire their repeal.

If Cincinnati can enforce jaywalking ordinances, so can Washington. If pedestrians were held strictly accountable, traffic would be expedited and accidents decreased.

BACK TO THE CONSTITUTION.

By passing the Fenn reapportionment bill the House of Representatives does its share toward restoring constitutional government and the constitutional election of the President and Vice President of the United States. The Senate should concur in passing the Fenn bill.

The bill increases the number of representatives in certain States and reduces the number in others. But there can be no injustice in this readjustment, as it is based upon the changes of population. The States that stood to lose representation have fought off this legislation for a long time, and thereby they have encouraged law-breaking by States and by individuals. What is to be thought of a law-making body that flouts and violates the law that creates it? Reapportionment should have been made long ago, following the census of 1920.

If the Fenn bill should become law, reapportionment will be made automatically after each census unless Congress itself shall act. The objections to this legislation on the ground that Congress can not delegate its power to reapportion have no weight when the subject is examined. Congress does not delegate this power under the bill, but on the contrary it exercises the power by commanding such changes as the mathematical alterations of population call for. The Constitution is obeyed by the Fenn bill.

RACING CARS.

The contest board of the American Automobile Association announces that effective in 1930 the two-man racing car will be restored to the Indianapolis 500-mile speedway race. The announcement meets with favorable response from automobile racers, manufacturers and the public.

The return of the two-man car marks a move toward safety. There are dials and recording devices installed on the dash of racing cars that must be closely watched for signs of incipient motor trouble. A driver takes his life in his hands every time he removes his gaze from the track to glance at the instruments. The driver must keep also his eyes on the pit, where teammates record the progress of the race and furnish him, through code signals, instructions and advice. It is probable that many of the accidents that have happened during speedway races resulted from the fact that the driver could not keep his eyes riveted on the track. With the two-man car, the mechanic will be able to attend to the extraneous details.

Of greater importance, however, is the fact that the two-man car will more closely approximate the stock car. The tiny one-man racer is an efficient racing machine, but as a working model in which to test new automotive design and theories it leaves much to be desired. The fact that the racing track constitutes the test-tube of automobile manufacture is the excuse for speed contests. The restoration of the two-man car will make the 500-mile grind more than a spectacle without serving to destroy any of its speed, color or interest.

CANADA AND THE VOLSTEAD ACT.

If the United States wants prohibition, it is up to this country to enforce it. The flow of liquor across the Canadian border will continue unless more effective steps are taken by the Government to stop it. Canada will go no further in helping to enforce the law to curb American thirst.

These conclusions may be drawn from the results of the three-day conference of Canadian government representatives with prohibition and customs officials of the United States at Ottawa. The conference adjourned without reaching any definite agreement. Canada demonstrated indifference to American prohibition troubles, and there is little possibility of a change in this policy in the future. The conference evoked much discussion in Canada and showed that public opinion in that country is decidedly opposed to cooperation with the United States to enforce the Volstead act.

The anti-smuggling treaty between the United States and Canada was signed in 1924. Under this agreement the two governments are mutually helpful in preventing contraband trade. In the conference of this week the American delegates ask Canada to refuse to issue documents permitting the export of goods which can not be legally imported into the United States. The Canadian delegates are justified in their conclusion that this is asking too much of a neighbor, especially one who is not in sympathy with our legislation on liquor. However, the delegates will report the request to their government, together with the reasons advanced in support of the same. There is little chance that the proposal will find any favor with the Canadian Parliament.

Failure to secure the aid of Canada in cutting off the flow of liquor over the border will be a blow to prohibition, because this traffic is now one of the chief sources of liquor in the States. With the limited funds provided by Congress for enforcement, agents have been unable to cope with the rumrunners on the Great Lakes. However, the problem is distinctly one for this Government to deal with. There is no consistency in asking a foreign government to enforce an American law.

NONSTOP WORLD FLIGHT.

A nonstop flight around the world is the next objective of aviation. Immediately following the success of the endurance flight of the Question Mark two different plans for encircling the globe have been announced. Col. Arthur C. Goebel, long-distance flier who won the Dole air race to Hawaii in 1927, proposes to be first in the attempt, flying west to east with a take-off at Wichita, Kans. Dispatches from Paris indicate that he will have stiff competition for the honor from the Fokker aviation concern, which plans to launch a plane from Paris.

Circling the globe in a single flight had been in the realm of impossibility until the record 150-hour flight of the Question Mark.

When it is remembered that the first flight, lasting less than a minute, was made just 25 years ago; and that less than two years ago the world was electrified by a flight from New York to Paris, the project seems daring in the extreme.

The proposed nonstop flight around the world would require a plane that will cover more than twice the distance attained by the Question Mark, which was only 11,500 miles. The route of a nonstop flight would be very long, because of the necessity of flying over land to make refueling possible. The round-the-world plane would no doubt travel faster than the Question Mark, but this would increase the strain on the motors and add to the possibility of failure. The Question Mark made by far the best endurance record in aviation, but if a plane is to fly around the world it must have twice as much endurance.

In view of these conditions it may be unfortunate if a race develops between Col. Goebel and the Fokker interests. The venture will involve heavy expenditures for construction of planes as well as preparations for refueling. The eagerness of pilots to win the honor should be tempered by consideration of the unprecedented difficulties that must be surmounted if the flight is not to be an inglorious fizzle.

TREATY—AND CRUISERS, TOO

By MARIATEGUI.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For genuine advocates of peace and order, security of rights and commerce on sea and land, the "Fifteen Cruiser Bill" is more important than the "Kellogg Multilateral Treaty," though both should be passed, and one is supplementary to the other.

As an instrument of peace, giving sanction and influence to the voice of the United States when raised, as it always has been raised, in behalf of peace and justice, an adequate modern Navy, trained and able in material and personnel to command respect for the people and government it represents, will be more effective in preserving the peace of the world than any paper "outlawry of war" which can be framed.

The convention for the neutrality of Belgium was observed so long as no overpowering interest of the parties to it came into conflict with it. Then it was held to be a mere "scrap of paper"—of no avail against the "higher law" of necessity—of paramount interest, of self-preservation.

The fundamental conception of President Wilson of a League of Nations was of a central material force to give sanction to an international policy of peace. In the last analysis the influence of the league was to be based on armies and navies. This President Wilson expressed both in Paris and during his campaign for the league in the United States.

In Mr. Wilson's realization that virtue to be effective must be armed against the legions of vice, his view was sound. The just objection of the American people to his proposal was his plan to set up this armed force in Europe; to place it under the command of a centralized international council, to surrender the independent position in which fortune and the genius and courage of our fathers placed us. In so far as our interests and our international responsibilities extend, a reasonable naval preparedness, with forces under our own control, will be more effective in preserving the peace of the world than the surrender of this control to a foreign council and, what is more, the inestimable blessings of liberty will be preserved for our people.

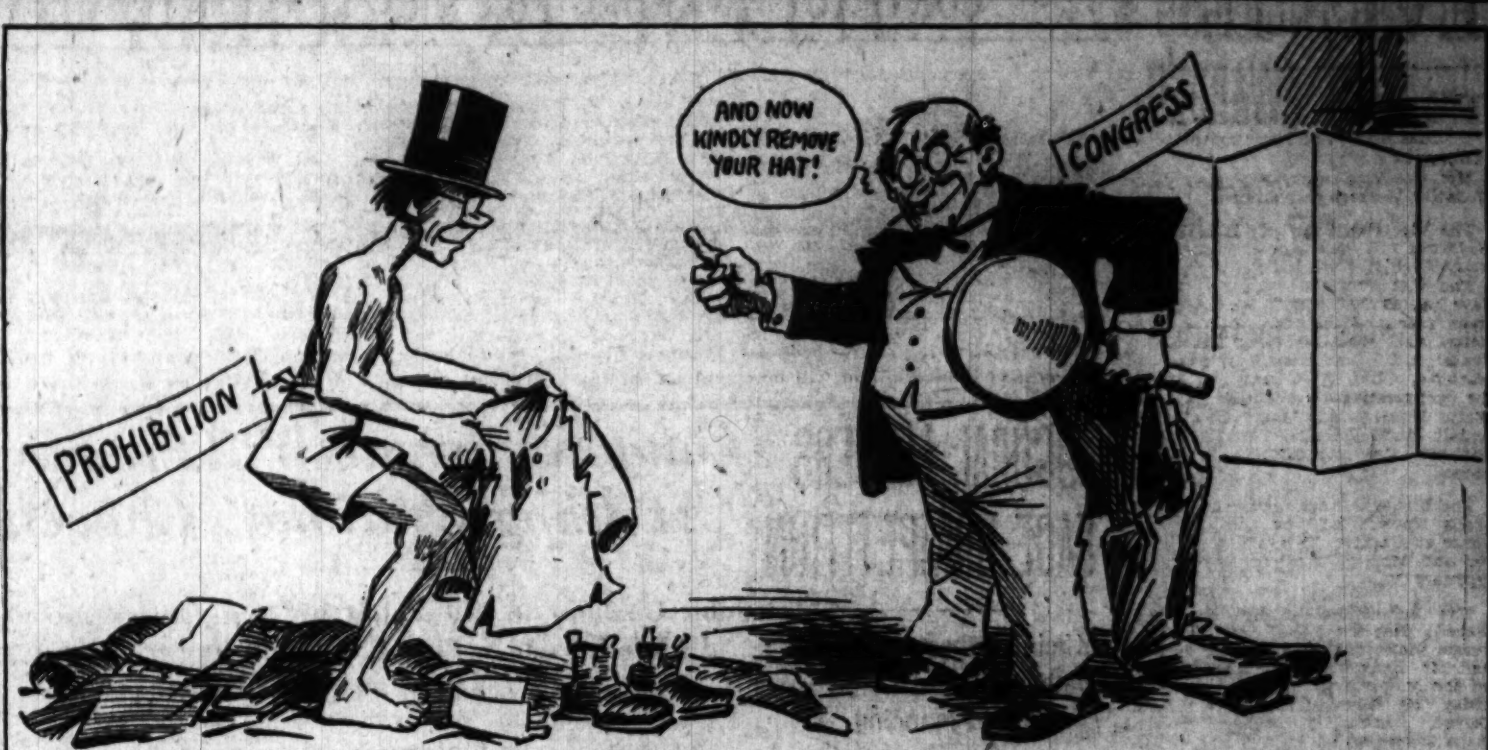

The general condition of peace of the Western Hemisphere has attracted the world's attention and has come to be designated as the Pax Americana. That is America's contribution to the peace of the world. What is it due to? Do we owe the increasing stability of the American republics to "pacifism," to "disarmament," to a humble dependence upon the charitable good will of the world, to verbal or written compacts too often made but to be broken? On the contrary, the Pax Americana is the product of American naval, financial, industrial, military and man power, coupled with American courage, American good will. It is due to the demonstration by various American Presidents of our willingness to use that power for the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine and the protection of American republican institutions.

Nothing is more tragic than impotent good will, spurred, kicked aside and spat upon by the armed and potent forces of evil. That there are forces of evil is admitted by the pacifist organizations now assailing the Senate. If this were not so there would be no occasion for these expensive paid organizations—based upon the assumption that the world is plunging headlong toward war. The mission of these organizations, led by salaried advocates and lobbyists, financed and backed by international as opposed to American national interests, is to stand in the breach.

They propose to stop the raging storm of greed and self-aggrandizement by placing the United States in a position of helplessness, and by an appeal to the world's good nature—just as Mr. Bryan proposed to meet the Kaiser's aggression upon our commercial rights and the lives of our citizens by saying to him, "We have no time for war; we are too busy in the works of peace and in caring for the interests of 100,000,000 people." And yet the inevitable consequences of such a policy were unconsciously disclosed by the late eloquent Bourke Cockran in his panegyric of his countrymen's valor. "If they had no other means of defense," he said, "the citizens of America would tear up the paving stones from the streets and use them in the defense of their country."

By armed forces of the world, in conflict with the pacific purposes of America, such appeals and such a defense would have been greeted with the same hilarity and derision as Mr. Wilson's proclamation to the Kaiser, "We are too proud to fight."

If peace is the object—and peace, coupled with the security of our rights, is undoubtedly our object—it is certain that such an appeal of helpless innocence did not and will not stay the raging tempest of armed aggression. A different tone, spoken with self-respect and with the consciousness of having a Navy and men and ships of such material and morale as would be capable of enforcing our rights upon the sea and of giving effect to our will for justice and peace in our sphere of the world's activities, would probably, in fact and not in mere empty verbiage, have "kept us out of war." What is more, it might have saved the world from a cataclysm of blood.

IT HAS BEEN SUGGESTED THAT CONGRESS INVESTIGATE PROHIBITION AND ITS ENFORCEMENT.

Turn About Is Fair Play.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

What's in a Name?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Ruminating over Shakespeare's question, "What's in a name?" I looked over the names of our Presidents to see if I could find anything there that would help toward a solution. I find that ten of them had a double given name. There are five Jameses in the list, three Johns, three Williams, and two Andrews. President Coolidge is the only one with the initial of both names alike. Mr. Hoover will belong to that class. So I do not find anything to throw light on the question.

M. K. L.

Public Does the Crowding.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of your correspondents commenting on overcrowded street cars suggests a maximum number of passengers be fixed by law. According to my experience and observation this overcrowding is the fault of the patrons in most instances. I use the Fourteenth street line. In the rush hours the cars run pretty close together. A number of persons will be standing at a stop; two cars are approaching, not more than four car lengths apart. The first car is already well filled, but all waiting must crowd in. They must not wait for the second car. Both cars are going to the same point, yet all must insist on getting into the first. At the next stop it is the same thing. A wait of half a minute would have given them a car with plenty of room. The reform is easy; it needs no law. Let the people act with some degree of common sense.

ALFRED LONGSTEAD.

Bad Outlook for Boulder Dam.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress passed the Swing-Johnson bill after seven years of squabbling. President Coolidge signed it, and the Government had washed its hands of the whole affair. Now it is left for the States to quarrel over.

Wild celebration in various Western States followed the announcement that the measure authorizing the largest dam ever designed had finally become a law. Las Vegas, Nev., demonstrated its enthusiasm by an impromptu parade led by the mayor, and similar celebrations were staged in California towns. Arizona and Utah maintained dogged silence.

To say the least, the enthusiasm of California and Nevada is premature. Congress has merely passed the buck to the legislatures of Utah and Arizona. Between the dam on paper and the dam in the stream there is a vast difference. Seven States are interested in the development of the Colorado, besides Mexico, California, Nevada, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming are apparently satisfied with the turn of events. Utah fought the measure to the last and is left dissatisfied. Arizona is unalterably opposed to construction of the dam under present arrangements. If the seven States fail to agree on a division of the water, the bill can not become effective for at least six months. Then, unless either Utah or Arizona can be brought into the compact, the Swing-Johnson bill can never be more than a scrap of paper. What becomes of the protection of Imperial Valley against flood?

The task of ironing out the difficulties between Arizona and California is so difficult that there is little hope of accomplishing it within six months. Arizona contends that Congress has no more right to allocate waters of a stream between the States than to divide the land of the States. In its amended form the bill gives Arizona 2,800,000 acre-feet of water a year, and California 4,400,000. This is sufficient grounds to test the constitutionality of the act, and it is likely that Arizona will resort to this means of holding up the work if all other efforts fail. This challenge will be further bolstered up by the

Nothing Will Jell Until It Stops Boiling and Cools Off.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A WRITER in the American Mercury, endeavoring to prove that the people want both Prohibition and liquor, pictures the hypocrisy of the town in which he spent his boyhood.

His State was "dry," yet his fellow townsmen openly patronized saloons that made no effort to conceal their business. And those who sold liquor in violation of law did not lose caste socially.

No doubt he describes the situation accurately; but if his fellow New Englanders sold hooch without loss of caste, I can testify that conditions were different in the "dry" State where I was born.

True, liquor was sold. Thousands of half-pint bottles lay in a pile behind one of the drug stores. Jugs and kegs came in by express on Saturday afternoons. And there was a bootlegger who spent most of his time at one of the livery stables.

But the bootlegger was a scorned outcast; those who shipped in kegs of beer were regarded as heathens; and the druggist, though respected for his riches, was held in contempt by the righteous.

That state of affairs, I believe, is general now and always has been general under Prohibition.

The people do indeed desire both Prohibition and liquor, but they aren't the same people.

The people are divided into three groups: Those who do not want Prohibition; those who want Prohibition for everybody; those who want Prohibition for the other fellow.

Those who do not want Prohibition respect the bootlegger if violation of this particular law is his only fault. Those who want Prohibition for the other fellow respect the bootlegger so long as he is able to conceal his business. Those who want Prohibition for everybody, themselves included, abominate the bootlegger and regard him as an instrument of the devil.

To say that the majority desires Prohibition as a sop to righteousness, and yet wishes to drink on the sly, is to say that the majority is composed of hypocrites—that "drys" are sneaks, and only the wets are pure in heart and sincere in their labors.

Whatever the ultimate solution of the problem may be, nothing is gained by manufacturing statistics, twisting facts to fit a prejudice, or calling names.

Common sense and common decency will find a solution. Insults won't help.

(Copyright, 1928.)

claim that Congress and the legislatures of six States have no power to make a binding agreement for distribution of water, of which Arizona is part owner.

Utah still adheres to the seven-State compact, so that if Arizona could be brought in there would be smooth sailing. But Utah has repudiated the six-State compact which leaves Arizona out.

If the State legislature, which meets this month, should reverse its position, it would run counter to all precedent. Gov. Dern, who has been an ardent opponent of Boulder Dam, was reelected. Public sentiment in Utah is against the compact.

Unless one of these two compacts can be ratified and stand the test of the Supreme Court, there will be no Boulder Dam. A new conference on the Colorado River among the States would result in endless bickering, since two of the States are now in a position to hold up construction of the dam. Enactment of the law by Congress, which took seven years, does not mean development of the Colorado or flood control in Imperial Valley.

J. C. FEARSON.

Paper Milk Bottles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From time to time local dairymen start prize campaigns for the return of empty milk bottles. Well they might! The cost of a milk bottle, it is said, is around 7 cents, and its average life is but four round trips between dairy and home. The loss to milk distributors in the United States in broken and lost milk bottles amounts to $15,000,000 annually. New York milk is now distributed by a large corporation in sealed paper containers, and if the innovation meets with public approval the glass milk bottles will be abolished.

The containers, called asealones, are made by automatic machinery in the bottling plant. The machines take a flat piece of paper, made from spruce pulp, turn it into a cone, send it through a bath of sterilized paraffin, and pass it on to the filling machine.

As if She Needed Practice.

Detroit News: The girl who asked 30 hours in New York for a price she didn't get is not married, so obviously she got her practice elsewhere.

The Mean Old Thing.

Ohio State Journal: Even if science should succeed in isolating the germ it would be just like him to break out and run around at night.

Refuses to Bite.

Kansas City Star: Sometimes you meet a chap who is such a confirmed pedestrian that he won't even believe you when you stop your car and motion him to cross in front of you.

Suggestion.

Detroit News: The Boulder Dam improvement having passed, a traveler with a tendency to vertigo says he would also be in favor of filling in the Grand Canyon with Rhode Island.

Gentle Al.

Houston Post-Dispatch: Al Smith is a tender-hearted man, but while his eyes were suffused with tears at parting with a dog, we believe he would rejoice at an opportunity to give a swift kick to a certain elephant.

Sounds Practical.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: "Child Injured by Washing Machine"—News headline. We did not know that device was designed to wash kids, but the idea sounds attractive, especially if there's an attachment to it to launder ears.

From Ooze to Muck.

Philadelphia Record: A scientific film drama in preparation will depict the evolution of man. It is to be called "From Amoeba to Broadway," so presumably it will show the progress of the human race from the primal ooze to the prevailing muck.

The Time Has Come.

Ohio State Journal: Old Ed Howe remarks in his pious way that he never waits until January 1 to make good resolutions but makes them every morning of his life and it does seem as if the time had come when Ed might leave the lying to us younger men.

Not This Year.

Philadelphia Record: "The Public Utility Commission," says a freeston dispatch, "in its annual report recommends changes in the practice of granting local bus permits." Director Schofield's solution of the problem, it is understood, is not to grant any local bus permits at all.

Slaughter by Any Name.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The report of the Pennsylvania Game Commission shows that 25,000 deer were killed in the open season last year, a total less than had been first predicted. The course is defended as "necessary to reduce the deer herd to a size commensurate with its natural food supply." But this solution of the Pennsylvania problem in deerland stirred up as much criticism as the original theory when first applied to the human race 130 years ago.

Flu Epidemic Is Creating Record Demand for Vicks

375,000 Jars Every 24 Hours Needed to Keep the Nation Supplied with Vapor-Salve.

Flu Milder But Widespread

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt response to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks Vaporub, the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records. Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts to meet the national emergency.

The present output of more than 375,000 jars a day almost staggers the imagination. It means that every 10 seconds a jar and a half, over 2,000 jars of Vicks are going out to check the nation's colds and help ward off the flu.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing.

AFGHANISTAN FIELDS TO TRIBES' DEMANDS

Abandons Attempt to "Westernize" Nation and Cancels Reform Laws.

GIRLS TO RESUME VEILS

Alahabad, India, Jan. 11 (United Press).—King Amanullah of Afghanistan relinquished today his attempt to create a modern and "westernized" nation from the fierce tribes which comprise his kingdom, according to advices received here from Kabul.

The king, whose efforts to introduce extensive European dress and customs among his subjects had met with a fundamentalist insurrection, ordered a royal proclamation published in all newspapers of Afghanistan canceling his reform laws.

Afghanistan went back to the life of centuries ago with the publication of the proclamation, so far as the government is concerned. The girls and women who had followed Queen Soraya in throwing away their veils may now hide their faces again when they appear in public.

Girls' Schools and Women's Associations

Girls' schools and women's associations were abolished in the face of armed rebellion on the part of tribesmen, who had been lashed to fury against the reforms by the king's priests. The king, who fought the advance of Western civilization into the hills of Afghanistan, feared it would rob them of their power.

Although messages received here said King Amanullah retained some of the reforms, the latest of the proclamation indicated that he had surrendered the last trace of his hand on Queen Soraya in throwing away their veils may now hide their faces again when they appear in public.

Proclamation also created a council of 50 prominent men to amend the laws of Afghanistan as a compromise with the victorious rebels.

Messages from Peshawar said the following changes were ordered by the king:

1. Recall of Afghan girls sent to Turkey for education.
  2. Permission for soldiers to become followers of the Pirs, or holy men, who opposed the reforms.
  3. Withdrawal of conscription of tribesmen for the army.
  4. Reestablishment of Friday as a national holiday.
  5. Proclamation signed by chiefs.
- The proclamation was signed by prominent members of the Ulema tribe, including Chief Gazi Mahmud and Akbar-Nizam Shah of Bazar.
- King Amanullah and Queen Soraya started their reform of Afghanistan when they returned from a tour of Europe a year ago. The reformative changes were introduced, many of them, in contradiction to the religion of the tribesmen—such as permission for men to shave their heads.
- Two months ago the organized rebellion broke out and insurgents attacked the capital. They were finally driven away, but damages were reported. All foreign women and children were evacuated by airplane. Although government soldiers were strengthened, the rebel tribesmen recently threatened the capital again.

Raskob May Be "Cear" To Cure Theater Ills

New York, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The New York Herald Tribune tomorrow will say that John J. Raskob, president of the national chamber of commerce, is being considered to head a proposed central financial bureau of theater producers which would attempt to remedy the admitted ills of the legitimate theater.

A drastic plan to remedy the ills of the legitimate theater this season, by a far-reaching unification of the producing units in this city under a central financial bureau, headed by "theater czar" already has met the approval of the bigger producers, and they are to confer with Mr. Raskob next week in an effort to secure him to head the new organization.

Kreitzer Furnishes Bail In Ryon Shooting Case

Henry Kreitzer, held in jail at Upper Merion since the shooting of Melvin Ryon, brother of former State Attorney J. Wilson Ryon, yesterday was given a hearing before Judge J. C. Sherrill in Upper Merion Police Court and freed in $5,000 bond to appear before the April grand jury.

The hearing was held after Judge J. C. Mattingly, of the county circuit court, signed habeas corpus papers and directed preliminary arraignment. Kreitzer had been held on a charge of murder without bond. M. Thompson Magruder and P. M. Hall, attorneys for the defense, filed a writ of habeas corpus with Judge Mattingly several days ago.

Order for Early Trial Of McManus Denied

New York, Jan. 11 (N.Y.W.S.).—After Judge Mancuso in general sessions today denied a motion by James D. C. Murray, counsel for George McManus, for an early trial of his client on the indictment charging him with the murder of Arnold Rothstein.

The attorney indicated that he would probably go before a supreme court justice to apply for a writ of habeas corpus.

Theft Held Object Of Turning On Gas

Police Say Former Janitor of Friendship House Admits Attack on Women.

An overcoat, dropped in his hasty flight, when "reserves" from the Fifth Precinct loudly warned him of their approach by ringing the gong on the patrol wagon, yesterday morning resulted in the arrest of William A. Johnson, 30-year-old negro, who was charged with assault with intent to kill in connection with the turning on of gas jets in the kitchen of the Friendship House, 202 Virginia avenue southeast Wednesday night.

Police said Johnson, a former janitor at the Friendship House, confessed to turning on the gas jets in the kitchen so that the seven women in the house would "go to sleep" while he looted a safe. A charge of housebreaking and petty larceny in connection with the theft of two old coats also was placed against the prisoner.

Johnson was discharged from his position as janitor of the Friendship House September last, after being arrested on charges of stealing.

Johnson, arrested by Detective F. L. Arrington and Policemen C. J. Stewart, said he was waiting in the rear of the house for the "gas to do its work," according to police, when he heard the police siren.

*Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will not need any money from the Community Chest in 1929 because of the income derived from its sales of tuberculosis seals.

These organizations have especially large amounts of cash on hand and will need much less in 1929 than they previously will in succeeding years.

The Washington Home for Foundlings will not require any money from the Community Chest in 1929 because of income from endowment and cash on hand at the beginning of the year.

HOUSES OF ALL FAME STORE HERE IS PLAN NEAR CAPITOL, CLAIM OF SEARS, ROEBUCK

Construction will commence next week on a modern retail department store just north of the intersection at Fifteenth and H streets northeast, to be occupied on completion by a branch of Sears, Roebuck & Co., nationally known mail order and merchandise business, according to an announcement yesterday by R. E. Wood, president of the firm.

The new structure, three stories in height, will occupy 5½ acres purchased by the company on Bladensburg road, north of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis terminal, a site selected because of its easy accessibility from all parts of the city and affording spacious parking accommodations for patrons with automobiles.

According to T. J. Carney, regional manager here for Sears, Roebuck & Co., virtually all of the employees of the new store, which probably will open next June, will be hired in Washington. Construction materials and supplies for the plant's maintenance also will be purchased here, he said.

The plans call for a structure of dignified and artistic appearance and equipped to serve its patrons with a maximum of efficiency and convenience, said Wood. "Our company expects to become a definite part of the city and will do everything in its power to cooperate with the agencies that seek to promote the welfare and prosperity of Washington."

Constructed of reinforced concrete and face-brick, fireproof throughout, the whole will be surrounded by a tower, concealing the water tank and any unsightly equipment necessary for the operation of the building.

Officials are anxious that the function of the store shall not be confused with those of the mail-order house, as the local branch will be associated with retail institution. The first two floors and basement will be devoted to retail selling, and the third floor will be utilized for general store and reserve stock. A uniformed attendant will be in charge of the automobile parking area, which will be surfaced.

Husband, in Cross-Bill, Backs Mother-in-Law

John L. Coker, tariff computation expert, of 5711 Georgia avenue northwest, filed a cross-petition for absolute divorce from his wife yesterday in District Supreme Court. In the cross-bill, Coker names two correspondents and sets out that he lives with his mother-in-law because she is in need of financial assistance.

Mrs. Coker, in a petition for limited divorce filed recently, charged Coker with cruelty, attention to other women and with refusing to associate with her although living under the same roof.

Death Is Decreed For Boy's Slayer

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 11.—A jury in Oyer and Terminer Court today found Peter Kudisnowski, 26-year-old thrill player, guilty of murder in the first degree for having hacked to death 7-year-old Joe Storrell, of New York City, in a diabolical swamp last November 17.

The verdict was reached in one hour and three minutes and automatically condemned Kudisnowski to death in the electric chair. The trial lasted but three days. Kudisnowski, still sullen and poker-faced, as when he first returned to incarceration, had been the details of his slaying of the Italian boy, did not raise his eyes as he was taken to the gallows. He responded to the formal query: "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

CHANGES PLANNED LATER BURIAL TO BE IN MEMPHIS

The quarters at 1418 I street are planned for the future as well as the present.

The director praised the budget committee for the excellence of its work, declaring it had been painstaking and thorough and announced that the campaign organization is doing extraordinary work.

President Delano then introduced John Foote, chairman of the campaign committee. Mr. Foote said that his committee had perfected an organization and paid high tribute to the various members who have contributed to the work, calling many of them by name and introducing them.

Request for $5,000 Made.

Representatives of the Christ Child Society declared that the society wished to keep its summer home open during the winter for convalescent children and would need $5,000 additional for this purpose. Mr. Bell said his committee approved the project but felt that the winter home should be reached by the committee in time to be considered and that the contingent fund would take care of any necessary shortfalls.

Short talks, all praising the work of the organization and the purpose of the chest, were made by Corcoran Thom, Clara Miller, Dr. Kelly Miller, of Howard University, Dr. J. Callahan, Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Archibald Hopkins and others.

Lost Battalion Hero Buried In Potter's Field, Is Belief

Uncle Had Identified Body as That of Raymond H. Williams, Who Found Marooned Troops in Argonne; Mother Mailed by Letters, Is View.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 11.—When New York City gave the season's largest funeral for its fallen today, the body of one unknown soldier whose name once was known throughout America was conveyed to Potter's field, the port of unclaimed dead, with 89 others.

The name of the world-weary warrior that became a number in a gaping ditch on the waste end of Harts Island was Raymond H. Williams. Investigation established beyond reasonable doubt tonight, it is a name that, in several war days, once thrilled the city and the nation; for it was Raymond H. Williams who found Whitely's lost battalion and led to its rescue from Argonne Forest.

The irony that often cloaks true heroic acts so arranged that Williams' roaming and vagabond spirit, the very spirit that made him a war hero, gave him the burial of a miserable pauper instead of a pompous military funeral replete with honors.

The tangled tale begins in the tinseled atmosphere of Christmas Eve. Pottery found a shabby derelict in a West Side gutter. He was taken to Lincoln Hospital with a fractured skull. To a board attendant the dying man gasped: "Ray Williams" as his name and died a few minutes later of acute alcoholism.

An uncle of the war hero, John J. Meyers, investment broker, read, among the deaths listed from alcoholism, the name: "Ray Williams; no home." Meyers went to Bellevue morgue and identified the body as that of his nephew, the war hero. But Meyers found himself in such straitened circumstances he could not afford a fitting funeral. He told his story to Burt L. Stafford.

Los Angeles Cruise Trial Board Fines

Held Up by Winds Trio of Policemen

Giant Airship May Abandon Flight Over Florida and Return to Hangar.

Port St. Joe, Pa., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles was weatherbound tonight, moored to the mast of the tender Patoka here, and may be forced by unsettled conditions to abandon her intended cruise to Miami, Fla., and return to the hangar in Lakehurst, N. J.

Forecasters for tomorrow and the next few days are unfavorable for continuation of the Florida cruise. The Navy Commander, Rosendahl, said, and he may leave about noon tomorrow for the return trip to Lakehurst. The dirigible was contingent upon weather conditions there, since they were reported unfavorable today. In spite of the late hour, the weather does not improve, the commander said he would stand by the Patoka.

The weather did not improve here today and Commander Rosendahl said that if the wind velocity increased he would cut loose from the Patoka.

JURY DROPS CHARGE OF 'MORAL MURDER'

Young Husband of Flapper Slayer Absolved by Ohio Grand Inquest.

WIFE SHOT SELF AT SIDE

Canton, Ohio, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Wilbur O. Heidman, Lorain salesman, tonight shot absolved of the death of his attractive 21-year-old wife, Margaret, who committed suicide after confessing to the slaying of a Canton coal dealer.

The Stark County grand jury in a report late today, ignored Heidman, who was charged with the slaying, as holding that there was insufficient evidence to substantiate Coroner Z. C. McQuate's charge of "moral murder."

Tells of Suicide Note.

Heidman drove up to the sheriff's office December 13, with his wife dying from a bullet wound in her heart, which the salesman said she had inflicted on herself as they neared Canton where he intended to turn her over to authorities. Heidman said she had written a suicide note, which was written and then evidently discarded after reconsideration, that she was the young woman who called Frank to the front porch of his home and without a word sent six bullets into his body.

The same day he learned this, he said, he started with her in their automobile for Canton and that night, as they reached the edge of the city, she suddenly shot herself with the same gun she had used on Frank.

Relatives Forced Inquiry.

Heidman's story was accepted by authorities, but at the request of Mrs. Heidman's relatives at Dubois, Pa., a second investigation was started. Two days later he was held to the grand jury for Canton and that night, as they reached the edge of the city, she suddenly shot herself with the same gun she had used on Frank.

Question Mark Covers Leg of Flight Here

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The record-making Army endurance plane Question Mark, powered by repaired engines, took off from the airport here at 1:12 o'clock today for Rockwell Field, San Diego, Calif., on the first leg of its return journey to Washington, D. C.

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Piloted by Capt. Ira C. Baker, and with Maj. Carl Spatz commanding, the Army endurance plane, Question Mark, arrived at Rockwell Field here at 12:34 p. m. today from Los Angeles. Maj. Spatz said that the engine on which slight repairs were made after the endurance test, were functioning normally.

BOND PRICES FIRMER IN NEW YORK EXCHANGE. Active Issues; Industrials Also Improve.

ITALIAN BONDS STRONG

New York, Jan. 11 (A.P.)—Prices were firmer and trading more active in the bond market today. The brightening outlook for the economy, together with a generally better feeling regarding credit conditions, led to a buying movement, which was comparatively brisk. Selling of loans of $25,000,000 by banks and the irregularity of the stock market caused some recession.

Bonds were among the more active issues. St. Paul 5s of 2,000 were acquired in volume, and the issue on one time was quoted only slightly below the year's best price. Chicago & Alton 5s advanced a point to a new top at 117. Substantial gains were recorded for Erie 4s, International Great Northern 5s, St. Louis & Southwestern 5s and a few others.

Industrial bonds were active, and particularly so, Missouri Pacific 5s, which advanced a point to a new top at 117. Substantial gains were recorded for Erie 4s, International Great Northern 5s, St. Louis & Southwestern 5s and a few others.

GIANT INVESTMENT
COMPANY FORMED

Tricontinental Corporation
Begins With Paid-In Capital of $50,000,000.

STOCK TRADING IS BRISK

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Formation of an investment corporation with an initial paid-in capital of $50,000,000 was announced yesterday by J. W. Seligman & Co., one of the oldest international banking firms in the country. The new organization, which will be known as the Tricontinental Corporation, is sponsored by the banking firm, which will make a substantial investment in its securities, maintain a close association with it and participate actively in its management.

Establishment of Tricontinental Corporation is in line with the recently developed tendency of investment banking firms to make a substantial investment in the securities of companies with large accumulations of capital brought together for investment. Tricontinental will be the newest name on a roster of investment corporations which have been organized in the United States, while the capital set-up is so arranged as to make expansion possible as rapidly as the corporation's activities require.

Five partners of J. W. Seligman & Co. will serve on the corporation's board of directors, which will consist of not less than eleven members. The other directors will be selected with a view of giving to the corporation wide experience and success in business and investment. Under a broad charter, the directors will have extensive powers in conducting the affairs of the corporation, which will specialize in investments in securities and participations in syndicates and underwritings, both domestic and foreign.

The firm of J. W. Seligman & Co. was founded in 1848 and started its banking career a few years later. Among its accomplishments are a series of successful railroad reorganizations, notably St. Louis-San Francisco in 1914, Peru Marquette in 1917, Missouri-Kansas-Texas in 1921 and International-Great Northern in 1922. These reorganizations have resulted in the sale of more than $1,000,000,000.

In the last few years the firm has been a large underwriter and distributor of corporate and foreign government bonds and of industrial stock issues, its flotations aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars.

It also acts as bankers or fiscal agents for foreign governments and many banking institutions. In the foreign field a notable recent accomplishment of J. W. Seligman & Co. was the Peruvian National Loan, which created a new financial structure for the Republic of Peru. Of this loan $40,000,000 of bonds have been sold.

Two years ago J. W. Seligman & Co. brought out a share of the common stock of the Victor Talking Machine Co., which is now being underwritten by Radio Corporation of America, a bank indicating the value for the Victor stock of around $180 a share.

Department Store Sales Shrink.

Sales of department stores in this territory suffered a moderate falling off last month under the corresponding period of 1927, according to preliminary figures of average retail sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve area, compiled here yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board.

Thirty-seven stores in the Fifth district, which includes Washington retail establishments, reported a trade decline of 0.7 per cent, as compared to the corresponding period of 1927. The decline is considered virtually negligible. Sixteen of the 37 stores in this area showed a pronounced increase in sales, while 21 reported a decline. According to the Federal Reserve system, the decline in sales was larger in December than in the previous month. For the country as a whole, sales were 1 per cent larger than in the corresponding month a year ago, although December this year had one less business day than last year.

National Bank Stocks Lead.

National bank stocks again came to the fore in trading on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday. Total volume of turnover amounted to 248 shares, while bond transactions aggregated $10,000.

A three-point net gain was registered in Riggs National Bank stock, which rose to $47.50 from $45.00. The stock, which last sold at $47.50, on the local market, yesterday brought from $50 to $51.50, in a 30-share turnover. Two shares of Washington Loan & Trust Co. traded at $23.

Advancing fractionally to 104 and 104 1/4, 140 shares of Metropolitan Life-type changed hands. Capital Trust Co. moved up to 106 1/4 and 106 1/2. Washington Railway & Electric preferred, to 90 1/4 and 90 1/2. Terminal Refrigerating and Warehousing Corporation rounded to 51.

Capital Trust Co. led the bond division, $5,000 changing hands at 106 1/4, while $1,000 Washington Railway & Electric preferred, to 90 1/4 and 90 1/2. $1,000 Potomac Electric rounded to 101 1/4. $1,000 Washington Market Co. to 90 1/4. $1,000 Barber & Ross, Inc. to 90 1/4.

Directors Are Re-elected.

Thirty-two members of the board of directors of the Federal-American Bank were re-elected at the annual meeting of the company. Elections were as follows:

ANGNA ENTERS ART IS TAILED AT DEBUT

Large Audience Appreciative of Fine Interpretation in Dance and Pantomime.

MYSTICISM IN TABLEAUX

A new disciple of Terpsichore made her debut in Washington yesterday when Angna Enters, mistress of the art of pantomime and the dance, presented a group of beautiful "episodes" at the New National Theatre under auspices of the Wellesley Club and the Bryn Mawr Club of Washington.

The performance was given for the joint scholarship benefit of these clubs and a representative audience from the social and college circles of the city was present.

That Angna Enters is unique in her field was apparent yesterday in her compositions in dance form which combined several of the arts in a delightful way. In the "Geschichten aus dem Wiener Wald," by Johann Strauss, with which she opened her program, all the soul of that great composer was portrayed by this dainty dancer. The pantomime effects were realistic and her slightest movement, a flicker of two fingers, a questioning eyelid, a movement of the head, all told the story of the composition and proved her artistic ability. An excellent dancer, yet her genius is at its height in her pantomime work, her poses, her pictorial gestures and rhythmic actions. Her choreographic conceptions are independent of the details of the score and grasp motives and moods of the music to a remarkable degree.

The mystic quality in De Busy's music was fittingly portrayed in "Feline," which was once appropriately described as presenting "instead of a woman dressed up as a cat, a cat with the body of a woman."

Two numbers were presented for the first time by Miss Enters yesterday, "Antique a la Française," by Gretry, and "Queen of Heaven," by Gaudier et Colnet. The first was of the Directoire period and it was prolonged apologetic. The costuming of all Miss Enters' numbers was artistically done and it was announced that they were designed and executed by Miss Enters personally.

"The Queen of Heaven," presented with delicate and restrained art, was also pleasing and directed wisely to theme and treatment from most of the other presentations of the evening.

Cast Off by Bride, Heiress, Says Man Prisoner, Picked Up in Sub- way, Tells Court "Blues"

Caused His Spree.

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, Jan. 11.—A man who, according to police, was arrested for sleeping last night in the waiting room of an uptown subway station, today in Manhattan court was a former man who, somehow, looked as if he didn't belong. His clothing was torn, his face cut and bruised and covered by a heavy stubble of beard. Beneath all this were traces of breeding that attracted the attention of Magistrate Maurice Gottlieb.

The dervish described himself as Albert Barringer, Jr., 27, University of Pennsylvania graduate, son of a good family and cast-off husband of an heiress. He unfolded a story of unhappiness since his marriage at St. Patrick's Cathedral in 1926 to the former Marcella McCabe, daughter of James J. McCabe, who left an estate of more than $1,000,000.

He separated from her eight months ago, Barringer said, or rather they were separated by her mother, Mrs. Marcella McCabe, of Riverside Drive. He told the magistrate he is preparing to bring suit for $100,000 against his mother-in-law. His wife inherited $500,000, he said.

Petersburg's Airport Project Discontinued

Special to The Washington Post.
Petersburg, Va., Jan. 11.—The city council has unanimously decided to discontinue work on the municipal airport here after the city has expended $4,000 on the project and the State $1,000. The decision is due to the fact that it has been found that an additional $5,000 or more would be needed to get the field into proper condition for flying. The council was of the opinion that the time and money here was not urgent and did not think it wise to invest any more funds in the project.

Bank Robber Captured With Loot in One Hour

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Within one hour after he had held up the First National Bank at Allendale, Ill., 10 miles north of Mount Carmel, at 7:30 a. m. today and escaped with $1,000 in cash, Virgil Davis, 27, a fruit salesman of Vincennes, Ind., was captured by a posse and confessed to the holdup, police announced.

Franklin, Ind., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—A robber obtained a pay roll of $10,000 from a messenger for a local furniture company in a hold-up on a downtown street here shortly after noon today.

Concert by Boy Genius, 12, Charms Audience at Poli's

Yehudi Menuhin Proves Title to Join Ranks of Master
Violinists by Exquisite Tones and Expression, Drawing
Spontaneous Acclaim From Music Lovers.

The name of Yehudi Menuhin, 12 years old, was added to the galaxy of world famous violinists who have played in the National Capital yesterday, when this genius of the violin played before an enthusiastic audience at Poli's Theatre.

The young musician appeared under the management of Mrs. Wilson Greene.

His tiny hands seemed hardly large enough to encompass the neck of the beautiful instrument, but all doubts were swept away as soon as he began the "Concerto in G minor" by Vivaldi which had its first performance in Washington yesterday.

The master violin builder of Cremona would have rejoiced in the cascade of exquisite tones this inspired child drew from the depths of the instrument. As soon as he began to play, one realized he is indeed a master violinist, one of the small company of geniuses of the bow who have written their names large in musical history.

Back of him is a remarkable record of widely acclaimed appearances as soloist, with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and other great musical aggregations. At his first appearance of this season in San Francisco, which is his home city, December 5, he played before an audience of 10,000 people.

In his opening concerto, Menuhin displayed his amazing ability, his unerring sense of rhythm, a broad golden tone and a precision of attack which was a fair promise of adult prominence in the concert field. Now was this lad, just entering adolescence, achieving in unusual understanding and gift for interpretation of the moods and emotions of the composers whose concertos and sonatas he played.

A serene surety that he was playing without a single glance at the score of two concertos and one sonata during yesterday's concert was in itself a marvelous achievement.

His trills and harmonics were crystalline in their purity and beauty. In bowing he had a sureness and boldness of movement unique in a boy so young. The tone evolved was round, firm, set and compelling and the cantabile movements it had a memorable stinging quality. Indeed, from the technical point of view, those privileged to hear him yesterday were unanimous that his playing was well nigh perfect.

At the storm of ovations which followed his opening concerto, Menuhin loved each number. Little jerky bows and appealing smiles won the hearts of his listeners. Perhaps he was a little embarrassed by the warmth of the greeting accorded him, because he kept mopping his face in true boyish fashion between numbers.

Seldom has Brahms been as well interpreted in Washington, at least, as by this youngster in the "Sonata in D Minor." The audience broke into spontaneous applause at the brilliant playing of the first movement in the "Concerto in B minor" by Saint-Saens.

Another high moment of this concerto was the finale of the second movement, "Andantino quasi Allegretto."

The fourth group was made up of three short compositions, "Nigun," by Bloch, "Chant d'Espérance," by Samazeuilh, and "I Palpiti," by Paganini.

Paris Court Limits Consular Immunity

U. S. Official Held Responsible for Acts Outside Actual Functions.

Paris, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The Court of Cassation, the highest judicial tribunal in France, ruled today that American consular officers can not invoke diplomatic immunity in suits arising from acts outside of their official functions.

The ruling was given in the case of Princess Zisnoff against Donald Bigelow, former U. S. consul, in charge of the passport bureau in Paris. She alleged libel and asked damages of $50,000.

The Court of Cassation said that Mr. Bigelow had a perfect right to refuse the passport, but that he should have halted there and that he was answerable if he uttered the remarks credited to him. The case came up on the immunity plea from the tribunal of the lower Seine through the Court of Appeal. It must now be tried on its merits and it will be heard in the low court on March 12.

TECH AND EASTERN FIVES SCORE IN SCHOOL SERIES

$10,000 Open Field Led by Armour
Capital Pro Is Only One to Beat Par; 3 Strokes Ahead.

Horton Smith Second; Von Elm and Mac Smith Third.
RIVERVIEW COUNTRY CLUB, West Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The hazards of old man par, scattered with generous hand over the long, canyon-situated course of the Riviera Country Club, rebuffed the bids of all but one of the great field which engaged today in the opening round of the $10,000 Los Angeles open.

The veteran Tommy Armour, of Washington, D. C. who in 1927 held the national open championship, alone of the 180 professionals and amateurs was able to drop the old gentleman, clubbing him from his entrenchments with a brilliant 68, three strokes over a perfect score. This super card gave Armour a three-stroke lead over the field. That distance behind were Horton Smith, youthful Joplin, Mo., amateur; George Von Elm, Detroit amateur, and Macdonald Smith, the defending titlist from the Lakewood Country Club, Great Neck, Long Island.

The par-four second hole, 445 yards in length and requiring precision and skill in stroking, proved a stumbling block for "Mac" Smith. The Scot need up six strokes before his shot was noted.

Von Elm likewise experienced trouble on one certain hole. A trap at the fifteenth, a par four, 445 yards, was the nemesis of the blonde amateur, who required three strokes to dig out. The 31-year-old Horton Smith played as near perfect par golf as any one could shoot on the difficult layout.

Three more Easterners were able to keep within striking distance of par by shooting 72. They were Bob Stupp, rangy Chicagoan; Henry Cuiet, diminutive Italian from Bridgeport, Conn.; and the veteran Al Watrous, of Detroit.

This trio held a one-stroke advantage over Frank Walsh, of Appleton, Wis., and Julius Ackersblom, of Little Rock, Ark.

Al Espinos, of Chicago, and Morrie Dutra, of Washington, started with par-breaking 56, but slipped badly on the incoming nine to finish with 66. The 72-stroke division also included Ed Dudley, of Hollywood, Calif., pro.

Far back of the leaders came four of the field whose golfing activities had brought better forecasts than their play turned out. They were Bob Stupp, Bobby Cruikshank, of Purchase, N. Y.; Joe Kirkwood, of Australia; and Leo Elagal, of Agua Caliente, Calif.

Hagen unloosed some of his occasional prowess, shooting a 70 in the morning round and a 71 in the afternoon, and got three 54 and four 55 holes uncertain until their caps were turned in among the last of the day.

Sarazen got off to a poor start in the morning round when he pulled a 7 on the fifth hole after putting to the green, and got three 54 and four 55 holes uncertain until their caps were turned in among the last of the day.

SARAZEN TIES FOR LEAD AT MIAMI

Equals Hampton by Record Round; Voigt Shares Third.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen, winner of the Miami and Miami Beach golf tournaments in the last three years, came from behind the leaders with a record-breaking second round to tie Hampton Hampton, Key West professional, for the lead at the conclusion of the first day's 36-hole play of the Miami Beach open championship here today.

Their mark for the 36 holes of play was 141. Sarazen taking 74 in the morning and Hampton 73 in the afternoon. Sarazen's record round was a 70 to set a new course record. Hampton's card showed a 71 in the morning and a 70 on the second 18.

The outcome of the first 36 holes of the match was undetermined until after 5 o'clock, when the last of the possible leaders came in. The crowd that followed players over the Bayshore course waited at the scoreboard for the cards of George Christ, Davenport, Fla., and Rochester, N. Y., pro, and Tom Kerrigan, pro of Mount Vernon, N. Y. Christ's 70-72-142 placed him in a tie for third with George Voigt, Douglass, N. Y., amateur, who chalked up a 73-69-142.

In fifth place was Charles Rice, Summit, N. J., star, with a 71-72-143, with Johnny Farrell, national open champion, sixth. Farrell's open card showed a 71-73-144 and he, with Voigt and Christ, made the positions at the end of the first 36 holes uncertain until their caps were turned in among the last of the day.

Glick Defeated In Bout With McLarnin

Largest Garden Crowd Sees Coast Fighter Win Decision.

Takes 7 of 10 Rounds; Glick Rallies and Pummels Victor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Fighting in his "lucky" ring, Jimmy McLarnin, blue-eyed Irish lad from Vancouver, stepped back among the top-notchers tonight by beating Joe Glick, tough Brooklyn lightweight, into defeat in a blood-tinged ten-round battle at Madison Square Garden. The stirring struggle, before a capacity crowd of more than 15,000, reopened the Garden to boxing after the death of the late-faced Celi, cool as ice, lightning fast and deadly with both fists, was the same punching-terror New York has known in the past, apparently fully recovered from his recent technical knockout at the hands of Ray Miller in Detroit.

The Williamsburg tailor, ranked as the outstanding lightweight contender and a two-fisted wildcat at first quarter, stole the play in the first round, rallied in the eighth and battered Jimmy in the tenth session.

In the other seven rounds McLarnin had a clear margin. There were no knockdowns and the decision of the judges and referee was unanimous.

McLarnin, who has left the lightweight division behind, came into the ring at 137½ pounds, while Glick weighed 135. Jimmy was a strong and full of fight, as ever, and a match at all three for the tricky, slugging New Yorker.

For a round he let Glick set the pace, but when Jimmy felt sure of his ground, he went to work in earnest. McLarnin feinted him into leading and then lashed both hands to the chin or body.

His smashing right hand rocked Glick to the floor in the second round. McLarnin started winning there and never slackened until the eighth.

His last, Glick's toughest barrage at close quarters with volleys just as rugged. He was so fast, so adept with both hands, that the capacity crowd belatedly applauded his brilliance.

Glick rallied in the eighth, whipped right uppercut to Jimmy's head, traded with him in the center of the ring, and turned the tide with solid smashes to the body that tapped the Irishman's strength for the moment.

Jimmy came back to win the ninth by a shade, but again in the tenth Glick threw caution to the winds and slugged it out while the packed house howled. McLarnin was gritty at the close, but he was not enough to trade punches with Glick after the final bell.

Jack Dempsey, who witnessed the match, left for Boston after the bout to aid William F. Carey, vice president and head power in the garden affairs. In the evening of Jan. 12, Dempsey is expected to fight young Stribling at Miami Beach, February 27.

Gehrig First Big Leaguer To Get Homer This Year
Key West, Fla., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Lou Gehrig has the satisfaction of being the first major leaguer to knock one out of the park in 1929. Babe Ruth's friendly rival and teammate took the field before a game between a picked Key West team and the Boston Braves in the U. S. S. Wright yesterday and knocked several out of the park. Key West trimmed the U. S. S. Wright 3 to 7. In the first game of the 1929 season.

Harvard Signs Horween To Coach 1929 Eleven
Boston, Mass., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Archie Horween, head coach of the Harvard varsity football team for three years, will return as head coach of this year. William J. Bingham, director of the Harvard football team, announced today that the signing of Horween was made at dinner to the coach and the 1928 football squad at the Harvard Club.

Bingham made it clear that Horween's contract called for his return for only one year. No indication was given concerning the Olinde football coaching program beyond that time.

Definite announcement of Horween's return at rest persistent rumors stating that he would leave the team after the 1928 season. Horween, who would be at the helm next year. The rumors first were heard almost on the eve of the annual battle with Yale. Horween's business connections in Chicago were given as the chief obstacle to a resumption of his duties at Harvard.

Rickard Wills "Over Million" To His Family and Relatives

Daughter Given Bulk in Trust; Widow Left $50,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—The will of Tex Rickard to be filed this afternoon by the New York Trust Co., executor, does not reveal the exact valuation of the estate, which Jack Dempsey said yesterday would amount to "over a million."

The will provides bequests for Rickard's widow, daughter, mother-in-law, sisters, nieces and nephews, and the income from $25,000 to Edith May Schultz, his cousin of the first Mrs. Rickard. It is dated March 13, 1928.

It is understood that the estate includes property in Boston and Miami Beach, Fla., securities in South American corporations and brokerage accounts and bank deposits in New York and Florida.

To the widow, Mrs. Maxine Elliott Rickard, the sports promoter left $50,000, his real property in Florida and all his personal effects, automobiles, household goods, furniture, books, pictures and silverware.

After directing his executor to divide the stockholdings in the South American companies and the stock of Paragon, into parts as near equal as possible, Mr. Rickard in his will provides that one of his cousins, Mrs. Lou J. Adams, should receive the balance of the estate.

After providing for Edith May Schultz, Mr. Rickard's will provides that all of the remainder of his estate, real, personal and mixed, be held or invested for the benefit of his daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard.

Flora Haig, his mother-in-law, Mr. Rickard's will provides that she should receive an income of $2,400 a year and upon her death the principal to go to his daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard.

After providing for Edith May Schultz, Mr. Rickard's will provides that all of the remainder of his estate, real, personal and mixed, be held or invested for the benefit of his daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard.

Garden Seeks To Proceed With Bout

Carey Goes to Boston in Hope of Swinging Sharkey in Line.

Terms Accepted by Stribling; Rickard Left No Contract.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Negotiations to carry on the fight night Tex Rickard scheduled, after appearing to be headed for the rocks, seemed safe and headed for the port of Miami Beach tonight.

With William F. Carey, vice president and former right-hand man of the late promoter, at the helm for the first time, the main deck of the Garden seemed to be in the hands of the promoter, who is the latest to land Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in the ring in the Southern resort on February 27.

One-half of the match is safe, Carey announced, after a long-distance telephone conversation with "Pa" Stribling, father-in-law of the young fighter. Tonight Carey headed for Boston to talk definite terms with Sharkey and the latter's manager, Johnny Buckner, upon the outcome of this confab depends the fate of the match.

With no legal contract left over from Rickard as a basis for negotiations, Carey undertook to straighten out the tangle over formal terms and financial arrangements.

So far as Stribling is concerned, any arrangement the Garden officials make is satisfactory, Carey said, emphasizing that the Georgian desired first of all to go through with the match, even at a sacrifice. Sharkey, who was understood to have been guaranteed $100,000 by Rickard, may be more difficult to arrange.

Jack Dempsey probably will handle the actual reins of promotion, if Carey succeeds in completing the business arrangements.

Dempsey promised to help in any way desired but gave no further indication of his own fighting plans. The fact that Dempsey is financially interested in the Miami Beach Kennel Club, where the arena for the match is located, is a factor in the situation. Control of this site passed from Rickard's hands at his death and is one of the difficulties involved in going ahead with the bout.

"It is possible the Madison Square Garden Corporation will stage that fight," Carey said. "I will be very happy if we can get it over, if only for the sake of the memory of Tex." However, Carey can not say we have the match made until we have the fighters.

The search of Rickard's papers today gave no indication of any agreement under which the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce agreed to underwrite the contest, as was originally intimated. Neither was any contract discovered involving Sharkey. Stribling, who had told Rickard he would fight once more in 1929, reports emanating from the Boston Garden that Sharkey has reached an agreement with Promoter Mack.

Sharkey has already expressed his preference for meeting Stribling in Boston rather than in New York, with the exception of New York. It was pointed out that Mack and Stribling were friends of the late Tex Rickard and that they would not hesitate to fight Sharkey in this city if the terms were satisfactory.

Block Offers to Back Bout in Aid of Charity
New York, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Paul Block, sportsman and newspaper owner, has offered to finance the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach if the Madison Square Garden Corporation deems it wise, not to go through with it, but only on condition that all the profits and 25 per cent of the fighters' purses go to charity. Block made the offer to a telegram to James I. Bush, chairman of the Madison Square Garden Corporation. The telegram follows:

"I have just read a report in the newspapers that the Madison Square Garden Corporation may wish to go through with the Sharkey-Stribling bout arranged by the late Tex Rickard to take place in Miami next month. If this information is correct I shall be very glad to be permitted to finance the bout, and the understanding that all profits resulting from it are to go to charity. I would also expect each fighter to give 25 per cent of his purse to charity. I would desire a committee of prominent men to be appointed to disperse the money to such charities as may be selected. Will you please let me hear from you."

"Pa" Stribling Says Fight At Miami Now Assured
Macon, Ga., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Pa Stribling, father and manager of W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon heavyweight, in a telephone conversation with Macon Telegram tonight from Miami, Fla., declared arrangements for the bout with Jack Sharkey at Miami Beach on February 27 had been completed. He said he had talked with Jack Dempsey and William F. Carey, chairman of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, at New York and a definite agreement had been reached.

Loayza Gives Winkler Lacing in Ten Rounds
New York, N. Y., Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Stanislau Loayza, lightweight from Chile, handed Al Winkler, of Philadelphia, a fierce lacing in a ten-round preliminary to the Jimmy McLarnin-Joe Glick main event tonight. The Philadelphia fan here since the death of Tex Rickard.

DIRECTS GARDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Negotiations to carry on the fight night Tex Rickard scheduled, after appearing to be headed for the rocks, seemed safe and headed for the port of Miami Beach tonight.

With William F. Carey, vice president of Madison Square Garden, who is leading in the attempt to stage the Sharkey-Stribling bout and who looks as the likeliest successor to Tex Rickard as general manager of the garden.

Neither of the games was anything like type as of last Tuesday, nor were either one-sided affairs. Both were very evenly matched, with the victorious teams ahead always. Paul Brown, stocky guard to the Tech Five, proved the outstanding performer of the afternoon by his teamwork work in caging four goals from the floor and a foul shot for the Manual Trainers, his final team clinching the game for his team in the final minutes of play.

All of the teams presented slightly changed line-ups, with Eastern Central being the most shifted club. Business was forced to get along without Paul Brown, steady forward, against Eastern Central, who was led by Stephen, a newcomer, at center.

Central's main deficiency was in its inability to break through Tech's now famous zone defense. The Manual Trainers effort failed through the Manual Trainers' zone defense. The Manual Trainers effort failed through the Manual Trainers' zone defense.

Central Bows To Old Rival By 19-13

Eastern Always Leads Business, Wins, 30-22, Despite Spurt.

Tech's Zone Defense Halts Foe; Brown's Shooting Feature.

By GARRETT WATERS.

A MID round of approval and disapproval, Tech and Eastern Fives fought their way to victory in the high school series games yesterday in a crowded Tech gymnasium, defeating Central and Business, respectively. More than 3,000 saw the two games. Tech took the lead in the first quarter, 19 to 13, while Eastern broke into the new mode by subduing the Business quintet, 30 to 22. Central, by its loss, fell practically out of the race.

RICKARD HOPED TO LUKE LEARN BACK BY RICH RAIT

One 'Big Shot' Was Goal of Promoter

Each "Extravaganza" of Tex Carried Game Along for Year.

A Dreamer, He Assumed All of Burdens of Boxing.

By BENNY LEONARD
(Retired Unbeaten Lightweight Champion of the World)

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—They carried the big punch of the game of Madison Square Garden this week. Tex Rickard was the greatest single stimulus the fight game ever produced. Volumes have been written about the man and many volumes more will be written about him, but I doubt whether all that is written will convey an accurate idea of why Tex Rickard was the greatest promoter of boxing that the world has ever known. My idea is that Tex Rickard in his way was a dreamer. I remember how I used to sit and marvel at the man when he was planning a big match. Unlike other dreamers, Tex Rickard was a man who after dreaming made his dreams come true. They said he didn't know much about boxing, and they also said he didn't know much about horses. Somewhere I read once the quotation, "They come to see and remained to praise," and that is what it was with Rickard at the start. After he had made me so many of his dreams come true he drew the public to him in a way that no other man in sports had been able to do. He brought a game and a peculiar personality, a strong magnetic force which dragged crowds into his arenas sometimes even against their will. But the greatest secret of his success, in my opinion, was the fact that he always "put on a great show." Rickard used to sit and dream which he would call a great "extravaganza."

In his original planning of the fight he didn't reckon on the fact that the public, thinking in cold figures, would figure about $100,000. Rickard didn't hesitate to offer a million for, and then, because he would put it on in his own intimate fashion, it would surpass even his most enthusiastic expectations.

All about me yesterday I heard good predictions that with Rickard money was no object. A fight that nobody seemed to strike what is to me the real point of the situation. It was tacitly admitted that Rickard had built up the fight game. The secret of how Rickard kept interest keenly alive was this: He was always scheming, always planning one great, outstanding feature of the year. He would put on at least one outstanding "extravaganza," as he loved to call them.

First would come his announcement of the big match. The match would be talked about, and then about. This would bring boxing prominently into the minds of the people so that even unimportant fights in the link town would take on a new interest, and the fans would flock to see them simply because boxing was the big thing in sports. Then would come the big fight, and then the streamers in newspapers all over the world, and whether accidental or not, something would invariably occur in these big fights to keep the people's subject alive for days, sometimes weeks and even months after it had taken place.

In other words, each one of Rickard's annual "extravaganzas" would carry the fight game along for a whole year, and before the interest was allowed to completely die out, Rickard would start all over again by announcing his next battle of the century.

Other promoters could put on fights between fighters of as much importance, but they didn't have that romantic personality, that vivid color, that indelible memory which Rickard alone possessed.

Many a time I sat alone in conference with Tex Rickard, and only a little over a year ago Tex begged me to come back for just one more big shot. He offered me a fortune and painted a picture that almost had me hypnotized into agreeing. We were standing on the shore of Saratoga Lake and Tex was digging in the turf with his cane while he talked big figures as if he were discussing pennies.

Rickard's name an Asset. A few days later I met Col. Hammond and the color of his face told me about Rickard's proposition. "Benny," he said, "I know there will be other promoters after you if you know you are going to come back, but remember this: If any body is ever going to put on a fight it would be worth his while to buy Tex Rickard $50,000 to promote it for him."

This abiding faith that the fans had in Rickard was not only confirmed to fight fans, but they had come to believe in him to such an extent that he turned another professional sport, hockey, into a gold mine.

I remember when Col. Hammond, probably one of the first in this country to realize the possibilities of the game, said Rickard the idea of promoting hockey in Madison Square Garden. Strangely enough, it was not until Rickard himself almost overtook him, became strongly enthusiastic over the game that it became the great drawing card that it is today.

COLLYERS COMMENT on the SPORT OF KINGS

Before shipping over to Miami the Seagram boys are going to grab one of the cheap stakes at the Fair Grounds this afternoon. Forcing horses of class to run for $2,500 is a huge joke, but the Canadian turfmen are real plungers and they will take a big "helping" before departing for Florida. All sails are set and no mistakes will be made.

LANQUENET is a superior mudder and will be hard to beat in the opening spasm.

In the third race, your Uncle Bertram is going to string along with HELEN E, which is a good explosion in the third if they don't of FALSE PRIDE. Just toss out his recent efforts. They go for Mr. Sweeney, the gent who manures the morgue.

Old Boy Trotter will find out just how good GREENDALE is in the fourth heat. On winter form, this colt appears to "kick out."

Also, it would seem that the distance will not bother him.

FRETWELL is the one they will have to beat in the sixth. Plenty of commissions have been planted by some smart boys. Look for the LUCKY PRIDE to take the track in the final heat and lead from start to finish.

Down at Oriental Park the good word is for VINCOSE, which sports like the LUCKY PRIDE in the fifth race. The chief of staff also is seen along BARE N, owned by Frankie Moore, as a KX special. JOHNNY AGEE is in good trim and will be hard to beat, while BRIGAND is labeled poison.

Pass the other events along to your neighbor. Now, fads, let your conscience be your guide.

PREP TEAMS DRILL FOR DEBUT.

Gonzaga, St. John's Seek to Conquer Handicaps.

WITH the opening of the prep school season, the league less than a week off, teams representing Gonzaga and St. John's are getting in many practice sessions in preparation for their clash in the curtain raiser.

Hoping to give the league an auspicious start, these teams are prepping overtime to get into tip-top shape. Followers of both schools look forward eagerly to this inaugural.

Circumstances exist which create a doubt that the teams will be at their best.

Gonzaga has, in the past week, or ever since the holiday period ended, been forced to go through its drills without a coach, due to Ken Stinson's illness with the flu, and it has been only in the last two days that Joseph DeLoe, Georgetown law student and former athlete at the Holy School, has been tutoring the team.

Fortunately for the Purple, Stinson's injury was not too serious, and before the holidays and the combination of Pussini, Byrne, Farrell, Kane and Connors has been worked together by DeLoe, who intimates that these men will be the ones to start against St. John's.

St. John's has been little less unfortunate. Drills have been carried on with a scarcity of games to help the Johnnies' experience. In its only game to date, St. John's was dropped to the Business High Quarters.

Although he has not picked a regular line-up as yet, Coach Sullivan expects to use Morris, Guider, Galtier, or Cooper, forwards; Slagle or Kilbourne, centers; or Atchison, Bitch, Lally, Lucas or Hudson, guards.

Proving Bob Agnew's injured hand, Coach Sullivan will use him in one of the forward positions.

not the only college man who succumbed to the advances of the pro after declaring he never would forsake his amateur status. Bill Carson, center of the Toronto Maple Leafs, and Dave Trotter, of the Montreal Maroons, who were both University of Toronto graduates, a long time before they took the plunge.

Friendship for Weston Adams, son of the president of the Bruins, was a big factor in Carson's decision to go pro for psychology also played a part.

Knowing George's great love for the ice game, the Adams saw that he had a seat in the front row at every professional hockey contest, and speculated with him on how he would fare in faster company than he had ever known in the amateur ranks.

Nightly his "yen" to get down there on the ice and find out how it would feel.

Georgia U. Turns the Other Cheek And Cheers for Tech.

Georgia Tech's football team, which defeated the California Bears in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena New Year's Day, got a great hand when it came to Tech's Atlanta, but what touched the players most was the reception accorded them by students of the University of Georgia.

The latter, a Tech alumnus, in honor of the victorious eleven with banners inscribed, "Georgia is Proud of Georgia Tech." Williams, an ideal of college relationships.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

As a Boy Sees His Fraternity.

DEAR DR. DEAN: Your recent article on "Fraternities and Borers" set me thinking a great deal. I am in the high school national fraternity. Our chapter contains twenty active members, all of whom we deeply admire. But there is, as in all clubs, a group of fellows who will drink. These boys drank before they became members so why say that the fraternities encourage drinking?

We have a most capable sponsor, Mr. who is always on hand at all meetings. I enlarged my friendships at least 50 per cent after becoming a member, because I was thrown with boys of my own age. The national convention brought the finest, most wholesome type of young manhood. We had clean entertainment and should have convinced any right-thinking person that a fraternity of this type is include Lady Marie Effie Wilton Bancroft, comanager of the old Prince of Wales Theatre in London and a famous actress and author, 1839, and Caroline Kirkland, writer of pioneer life in Michigan under the pseudonym, Mary Clavers, 1801.

Our high school fraternity has proved that the best and most wholesome bunch can separate from the lower and underminded bunch of fellows who are let in all schools, and form a club that lives up to the best Christian ideal.

Now let the Dean Clark tell us what folk, or boys, can do to rid themselves of this "get-togetherness" or to satisfy their desires for mixing with other boys.

Are't all humans gregarious?

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

Wants Gifts Back.
I gave my sweetheart an expensive radio for Christmas so that she could use it before we were married. She opened up 1929 and she was so engaged. In my loneliness, I could use the radio. How can I get it?

Answer—Well, this isn't a legal department; but as this gift was made in contemplation of marriage it should be returned by the lady, since she broke the engagement.

Gratitude.
If there is anybody in the world who feels like a fifth wheel it is I. My daughter was brought up by a dad who sacrificed and scrimped, worked hard to give her an education, luxuries, accomplishments. Now she has married very well.

She has money, cars, servants, homes, Europe, Palm Beach, gowns, jewels and I hope she has happiness.

But here is the sequel. I have not had a line from her, not even a postal card, although I write her regularly, and the letters must reach her because most are returned. What is your deduction of this conduct? I am divorced from her mother.

HEART-BROKEN DAD.
Answer—The answer is in your last statement. Secretly she sided with the mother, but she used you as long as she needed you. Now that she is loose and free she shows her true feeling.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

JANUARY 12.

LOUISE, CATHERINE ADAMS, wife of John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States, was born this day, 1775. She was a brilliant companion during her husband's distinguished career as Minister to Russia, to the court of St. James in London and as President. It was she who made his administration so brilliant socially.

Annie Russell, famous actress of the American and English stage, was born this day, 1874. Some of her more recent roles include Kate Hardcastle in "The Stoops to Conquer," Lydia Langguth in "The Rivals," Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal" and Mme. LaGrange in "The Thirteenth Chair." In 1915 she organized an old English comedy company.

Arabella Goddard, English pianist, the first to play Beethoven's posthumous sonatas in England and who was acclaimed throughout the world, was born this day, 1836.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

MR. W. A. S. writes: I wish you would write on phlebitis. I had it when my last baby was born six years ago. I kept my leg in a rubber bandage for nearly two years. It did not pain any more, but it is swollen to twice the size of the other leg by noon each day, and the veins stand out in knots. Is there any cure for this?

REPLY.

Phlebitis means inflammation of a vein. In your case one or more large veins in your leg were involved. The inflammation, in the first place, was due to infection. The infection entered through the pelvic organs and extended to clotted blood in some local veins. From there the infection traveled to the leg veins. In all probability it was a mild infection. You never thought of it as blood poisoning, or child-bed fever, and it was not, but it was a near cousin to these very dangerous disorders. I presume, with you, the infection was called "milk leg." You regarded it as uncomfortable and unfortunate, but of no more consequence than that. Out of it has come various veins. These various veins cause you considerable discomfort, limit your capacity to do your day's work, and interfere with exercise and pleasure. You were a rubber bandage for two years and found it inconvenient.

Various veins are generally treated now by the injection method. There are several of these methods, and they are much better done than was the case a few years ago. The injection method is having the call over the removal method practically everywhere. For you there are two questions to decide. First, does your trouble cause enough inconvenience to warrant the trouble and expense of cure? Second, how much subinfection of the vein is there in the vein? How much acute infection is there in the vein? Burens of the water to inject veins in which there is acute phlebitis or even in which there is latent infection, or subinfection, or subacute (low grade) phlebitis.

"Window Shopping"

Novel Cigarette-Box.
A very clever cigarette-box is shaped to represent a miniature radio set. When a knob is turned the cigarette slips out and a little tune tinkles forth. If one does not feel in a musical mood, it is possible to silence the music.

Moderate Lamp.
Quite in the modern mode is a lamp with a ruled base of yellow polystyrene. The shade is conical in shape, like a footstep, and shades from yellow to brown.

For the South.
Sweaters the younger set are buying in ever so many different colors for wear in the south are of like with short sleeves, and the popular undershirt opening. With them are worn short socks of the same shade. These come in all the lovely pastel shades that look so well with sunburn.

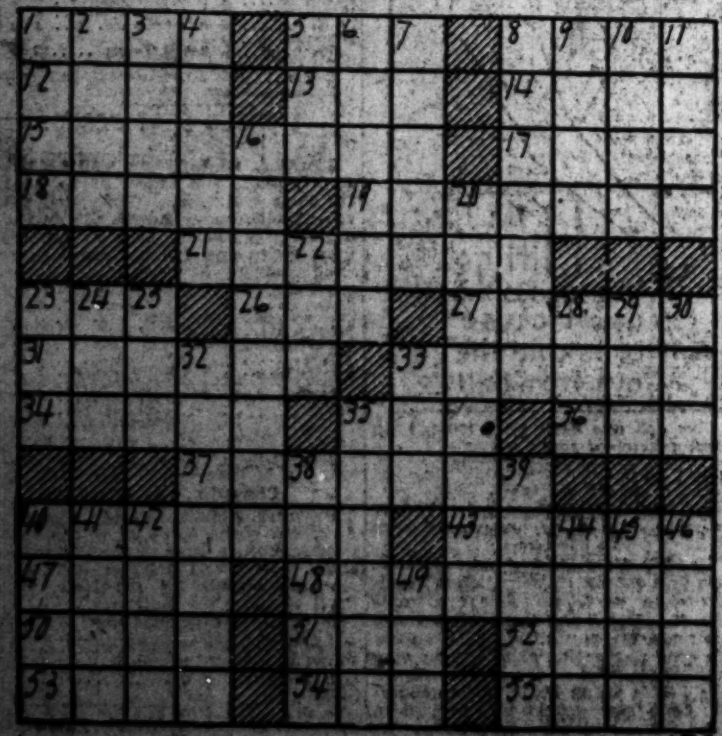

Just Suits.
A quaint cream colored china jar has old-fashioned English scenes in lavender upon the sides, and is filled with the most delightful soap salts.

Pewter.
A most interesting tea-set is of pewter with a small raised motif upon the sides of the handles of the water jug and pot have wicker handles. If desired, a coffee-pot in the same interesting metal and design may be purchased.
